MAJ. FRED BURKE, USA, assistant quartermaster at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., shouts a command to his "Cavalry troop," in the frontier-days celebration, "Heldorado," at nearby Tombstone, Ariz. The entry is reminiscent of the late 1870's when "Camp" Huachuca was established as a Cavalry outpost. Since 1954 the Fort has been the Army Electronic Proving Ground. Major Burke commanded the 10th Mountain Reconnaissance Troop during WW II, the last Army unit to use horses in combat.

Pay Group Nears Deadline, Studies Plan That Gives Most Officers $40-$55 More Monthly

ITS deadline only a month away, the Cordiner Committee is driving toward the wrap-up of a comprehensive study on military pay scales that could put up to $500 million in the pockets of Service families.

Final decisions have not yet been made—they could be delayed until after the elections—but it is known that a radical new pay plan is receiving close scrutiny.

This pay scheme, which has won all-out support in some Services, a chary "It needs further analysis" reaction in others, would boost the monthly pay of first lieutenants, captains, majors and lieutenant colonels in the range of $40 to $55 per month. Pay increases for colonels and generals would be "substantially higher" — some running to thousands of dollars per year.

Pay rates for enlisted men would be revolutionized by providing variable pay scales within the same rank. Thus, for example, a master sergeant who is a specialist in nuclear weapons armament might receive as much as $120 per month more than a master sergeant cook. This extra pay would be gained as incentive rewards over a period of years, probably four to six years.

Advocates of the specialized pay plan cite the recent medical pay legislation as a precedent. They say that Congress, once advised of the need, went along

Better Food For AF Is Promise At W-P

AIR MATERIEL COMMAND
WRIGHT-PATTERSON AFB, OHIO

The promise of better food for Air Force personnel—both on the ground and in the air—resulted from the third worldwide AF Food Service Conference held here this week.

More than 200 representatives of major air commands, together with top food specialists from industry, met at Air Materiel Command Headquarters to work out solutions to Air Force feeding problems.

New objectives which came out of the meeting are expected to:

1. Improve flight feeding.
2. Provide higher quality bread for dining halls.
3. Establish improved food service at remote installations.

4. Assist in obtaining and keeping trained food service officers.

In addition, the Conference agreed to push recommendations to establish training schools for food service personnel.

Although there was solid agreement on these areas of endeavor, a number of controversial issues also were brought into focus. These involved contractual arrangements, principally in manage-

"Aerial Jeeps" With 106mm Rifles, "Flying Cranes" Spark Disclosures Of Plans For Army Aviation Of Next Decade

THE Futurarmy will employ 1000-pound "aerial jeeps," flying cranes, new types of helicopters, STOL and VTOL aircraft and planes that will hit speeds of 275 to 300 knots and still be able to take off over a 50-foot obstacle within 600 feet.

That's the prediction of Maj. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, USA, Director of Army Aviation.

In a speech prepared for delivery on 26 Oct. to the Association of the United States Army in Washington, D. C., General Howze makes probably the most comprehensive forecast on Army Aviation that has yet been cleared by the Defense Department.

Because of its far-reaching importance, THE JOURNAL herewith publishes pertinent excerpts from General Howze's address:

THE HIGH PERFORMANCE AIRCRAFT is needed to perform conventional observation missions and to carry electronic gear for battle area surveillance. It should have a speed of 275 to 300 knots and be able to land and take off over a 50-foot obstacle within 600 feet.

"An aircraft to meet this requirement is in design competition now and should be available to the Army by 1960.

"In cargo aircraft there is a requirement for a fixed wing plane with about a 2½-ton payload. It should have a cruise speed of about 200 knots and take-off and landing capabilities, again over a 50-foot obstacle, within 500 feet.

"A heavier requirement in the field of a four-ton transport should have a speed of about 250 knots and like landing and take-off capabilities.

"Further it is possible that we might be able to combine the capabilities of both these type aircraft in one having a short take-off capability of 4 tons and a vertical take-off capability of 2 tons by making use of some of the principles now being tested in our test bed program. One such aircraft uses the tilting ducted fan principle, and the other, the tilting rotor principle. In the short 4-ton take-off usage of this plane, it should have a speed of about 200 knots, a troop capacity of 40 men, and take-off and landing capability within 500 feet. In its ver-

Army Revamps Efficiency Report

A new Army Officer Efficiency Report form will be used starting 31 Dec. It will be distributed simultaneously with AR 623-105, which is the new efficiency report regulation.

The revised report will require that a statement be made by the rating officer on the rated officer's physical ability to perform in time of war the duties required by his grade and branch. In addition, review of the form must be accomplished at the headquarters which rates the indorsing officer to insure that proper rater-indorser channels have been followed and that the report is administratively correct.

The reviewing officer, who will either

Next Week

Alaska Defense FUTURARMY II AF Food Plans

• Col. James R. Gunn, jr., USAF, Commander of the 10th Air Division in Alaska, reports to JOURNAL readers on how a "Gibraltar-like rampart" guards against a potential enemy air strike. The article coincides with a 1 November celebration by the 10th of its fourth anniversary.

• The extensive coverage in this week's issue of the Futurarmy sessions of the Association of the U. S. Army will be followed-up with concluding speeches and comments on behind-the-scenes action, as gathered by a JOURNAL team of reporters covering the convention proceedings.

• There will be more details in next week's issue on Air Force plans for food service improvements throughout the world—a followup on stories in last week's issue and on Page 1 of this issue.

USN-USMC-USAF Join In Month-Long A-War

A month-long amphibious maneuver, dubbed "LantPhibEx," gets underway 29 Oct.

The exercise involves 34,000 Atlantic Fleet Bluejackets and Marines, 38 ships, 300 Naval aircraft, and several F-100 "Super Sabre" jets of the U. S. Air Force Tactical Air Command.

Marine amphibious troops led by Maj. Gen. Ray A. Robinson, USMC, who assumes command of Fleet Marine Forces, Atlantic, on 1 November, will be loaded at Norfolk, Va., and Morehead City and Wilmington, N. C.

The at-sea phase of the operation will be conducted off the Virginia-North Carolina-South Carolina coastlines. The maneuver will be climaxed by an assault landing on Onslow Beach, N. C., on 13 November, with units of the 2d Marine Division and the 2d Marine Air Wing, making up the attacking Air-Ground Task Force. During the initial phase of the assault, Marines will employ the "vertical envelopment" method of landing in which combat troops are flown over enemy lines by helicopter.

Once ashore the assaulting Marines will engage in a five-day battle with Aggressor Forces. The Air Force jets make up part of the "enemy" force.

According to Admiral Jerauld Wright, USN, Commander-in-Chief, Atlantic, and U. S. Atlantic Fleet, the exercise is tailored to fit the atomic age. The methods and techniques of using atomic weapons will be tested and evaluated, he said. Speed, dispersion and mobility will be emphasized throughout the maneuver as defensive measures against atomic attack.

VAdm. Lorenzo S. Sabin, jr., USN, is in overall command of the exercise.

It Will Be A Captain's Christmas For 1415 Out Of 3914 AF Line Selections

The Air Force has released the names of 3914 first lieutenants selected for temporary captain and will follow this with approximately 1800 choices for major in mid-November.

In addition to the line officer selections, the Air Force named 93 MS, 108 Nurses, 69 Chaplains and 5 WMS first lieutenants for temporary captain. Their names are published on Page 31 of this issue.

The Air Force's schedule for line officer advancements to temporary captain calls for 485 this month, through 1019 in November and up to No. 1415 on the seniority list by Christmas.

This week's issue of THE JOURNAL lists the names of the first lieutenants who will be promoted to captain before 25 December. Subsequent issues will list the other selectees.

Analysis of the line officer selections shows that two officers hold date of rank from 1947, two in 1948, one in 1949, and Numbers 6 through 25 in 1950.

The 1951 group covers Numbers 26 through 63, with the 1952 category including Numbers 64 through 1688. The 1953 group goes from 1689 to 3896.

Dates of rank in 1954 are held by Numbers 3897 through 3914, who is 1st Lt. Philip J. Erdle, with rank from 18 March 1954.

PROMOTIONS, HIGHER PAY, LESS PAPER WORK

ASSERTING that "the best costs more but it is worth the difference," Brig. Gen. Albert Watson, II, USA, outlined steps which the Army will take to improve "Careers in the Futurarmy." These include more Noncommissioned Officer promotions, increased pay, reduction of administrative burdens, expansion of housing, and cheaper rentals for families forced to occupy substandard quarters.

Here are highlights from General Watson's report:

PROMOTIONS—The Army's new program for promotion of outstanding officers is overcoming previous situation which "tended to stifle initiative and to cause officers to leave the service in favor of civilian employment." On the Noncommissioned Officer front, the Army will seek to eliminate the present stagnation in advancement to higher ranks by upgrading certain positions, seeking more money for FY '57 promotions and providing for increased numbers in top grades in the FY '58 appropriations request.

PAY—General Watson said "there must be strong support" for such incentives as adequate pay, in addition to security, advancement and housing. He said the Cordiner Committee "will assist in removing present inequities and providing substantial additional career incentives."

HOUSING—Labeled the major problem "beyond any question" for the immediate future was the lack of housing for Army families. Eight out of every 10 Army officers are married; four out of 10 RA enlisted men. "Because of shortage of housing for our garrisons around the world, however, families are sometimes separated for protracted periods of time. This situation," said General Watson, "is a source of infinite dissatisfaction and, sometimes, of tragic complication."

He said the Army now has a shortage of 96,000 units, but reported that plans call for 60,000 sets of quarters in the next three years. Heavier use will be made overseas of the "butter for bricks" program in which funds from surplus commodity sales are used for military housing.

SUBSTANDARD QUARTERS—As previously reported in THE JOURNAL, Congress will be asked to approve reduced rentals for families occupying substandard quarters. Such legislation was voted by both the House and Senate this year, but was not enacted because of a technicality and the lack of agreement by the two legislative bodies on all particulars. "We desire to charge only a fair rental for such quarters," General Watson reported.

ADMINISTRATIVE BURDEN—"We are driving to reduce the excessive administrative burden carried by combat forces company-level commanders. This reduction includes the elimination of a surprisingly large number of unnecessary reports and certificates."

General Watson is Director of Personnel Plans, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel.

Don't Forget Bachelor Officer's Home Plight!

The Army is short more than 200,000 soldier spaces in its permanent barracks construction and needs 100,000 family housing units.

On top of this, thousands of bachelor officers are being charged high rentals for unsatisfactory BOQ facilities.

This situation needs to be remedied, Brig. Gen. Keith R. Barney, USA, told the Association.

Director of Installations in DepLog and a selectee this week for two-star rank, General Barney declared that "family housing problems are a leading cause, perhaps the number one reason, for non-retention of trained people in the service."

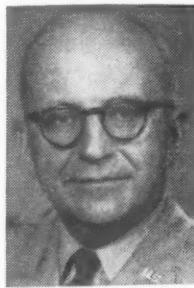

He cited the little-mentioned problem of the bachelor officer "who is still paying $80 per month for the privilege of living in a WWII 8 x 10 room."

General Barney reported that "wherever there is adequate housing in the nearby community we will not build our own housing. But we emphatically reject the proposal that the Army has any obligation to provide purchasers for houses in nearby communities where, for their own reasons, the communities have so managed their building programs that adequate rental housing is not available to our people."

Surveying over-all Army construction problems, General Barney revealed that the Army has fallen behind its 20-year building program (begun in 1954) by several hundred millions of dollars. He cited "budgetary limitations" as the explanation.

Army Aviation Chief Tells Of Imaginative Futurarmy Plans

tical take-off configuration, the plane would have a lesser load of about 2 tons and a speed of about 250 knots.

"Test models of these aircraft could be available in the 1961 to 1962 period.

"LET US TURN NOW to the rotary wing aircraft, or, as it is better known, the helicopter. As I indicated earlier, our chief aim here is to get helicopters with simpler design, easier maintenance, and more suited to field needs of the Army. In light helicopters we hope to achieve this by making them smaller, more compact, and simpler. In large helicopters, we are going over to simplified designs and improved power plants; the development of turbo-shaft engines holds great promise in this regard. Let me outline a few significant trends in helicopter development.

"First, we are working on a light, simple observation helicopter. We hope to be able to procure a helicopter of this type in sufficient numbers to distribute them on a really large scale to our combat forces. It should be small, simple, and cost about 1/3 of the present models.

"It will be placed in design competition next year and it should be available for issue to the Army by 1959 or 1960. It is also possible that one of several commercial helicopters under development might enable the Army to meet this requirement earlier.

"Next, a replacement for the utility helicopter. This is the Bell H-40 which should fly within the next couple of months. It will have a cruise speed of 100 knots and a payload of about 1,000 pounds. This is the first helicopter that has been designed to be powered by turbo-shaft engines.

"It will be available for issue to the troops in 1959.

"Next, we have a requirement for a new medium cargo helicopter. This helicopter should have a payload of 3 tons, and again will be powered by turbo-shaft engines. Proposals on helicopters of this type are being considered at the present time.

Futurarmy Demands More Professionals General Booth Tells Association

First Termers Goal, P. 20

THE Army, faced with new demands for outstanding leadership qualities in its Officer and NonCommissioned Officer ranks, must give its career people as much responsibility in their daily job as they can take and advance them "as rapidly as they are able to take on greater responsibility."

This was the assertion of Maj. Gen. Donald P. Booth, USA, Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel.

He said that special requirements of yesterday, such as required for Commando, Ranger and Special Force type operations "won't be much different from the concepts described for small units operating independently on the greatly extended battlefields of the future."

"These special requirements of yesterday are becoming the day by day requirements for men now and completely so in Futurarmy."

"ON THE FUTURE BATTLEFIELD," General Booth continued,

"junior commanders will have to be capable of shouldering great responsibility and exercising almost unlimited initiative. We may find the major or the lieutenant colonel of the future required to make decisions comparable to those made by general officers under WW II conditions. The constant contact with the dependence on, and the guidance from higher headquarters may not be possible."

Pointing up the increased need for correct, on-the-spot professional judgment, General Booth warned that "increased speed of movement and destructive effects of weapons can make a mistake in estimate or judgment, which might have had no serious effect in past wars, result in catastrophe in future actions."

THE NEED FOR VERSATILE experience was stressed as General Booth remarked that in the future "we must train our men to lead and fight relatively small battle groups in which there probably will be integrated all arms, to include infantry, artillery, armored, engineers, signal and others. He must know the capabilities and limitations of each of these elements and of the unit as a whole. And each of the arms will have more complex equipment."

The solution to the Army's problem, General Booth declared, "lies in the career—the long range approach. The words 'professionally qualified' and 'professional soldier' take on a new and vitally important meaning."

Maj. Gen. Booth

what we call 'small lift devices.' Two of these are being tested at the present time. These are the DeLackner Aerocycle and the Hiller Flying Platform. Both of these should develop a forward speed of about 25 knots and be able to keep one man with his equipment in the air for about an hour. They will be air transportable and will add a great deal to the mobility of the individual on the battlefield. We foresee them being used by patrols, messengers, for reconnaissance, and to perform many of the missions which have always required the movement of an individual freely and quickly in the battle area.

"Both of these models are in flying tests at the present time and should be turned over to the troops for troop tests within the next calendar year.

"The next adaptation of this concept is what we will call the 'aerial jeep.' This vehicle incorporates two of the rotors which you saw in the Hiller Flying Platform. This vehicle should weigh about 1,000 pounds and have a payload of about 1,000 pounds. It could mount radio equipment, machine guns, and could, we feel, even mount a 106 mm rifle. This vehicle, too, will be air transportable.

"We are going out on design competition for a vehicle of this type this year and we hope to have it ready for troop test by 1959."

"The future possibilities of this application are so great that I will leave them to your imagination."

Army Aviation Unit Set Up In CONARC

General W. C. Wyman, USA, Commanding General, Continental Army Command, has established an Army Aviation Section at CONARC and appointed Col. Charles R. Murray, USA, a graduate of the first Army Senior Officers Flight Training Course, Fort Rucker, Ala., as acting chief.

The new section will draw together the various Army Aviation activities and centralize them into a single staff section where the chief will assume an advisor relationship—similar to that held now by the Special Staff Section—with the Commanding General and his staff.

The Inter-Service Sports Council has scheduled three events for 1957. The Navy will act as host for the Inter-Service Boxing Matches on 14-15 March; the Army will be host to Armed Forces tennis players from 20 to 24 August; and the Marine Corps will be host to Service golfers from 21 to 24 August.

Track and Field has been cut from the 1957 schedule. The Army, however, will conduct its usual Inter-Service Triathlon Championship to select servicemen for the United States Modern Pentathlon team.

SALUTE TO ANC
IN COL. ACTION

The Army has made good on its promise to take all possible action—pending passage of proposed legislation—to improve promotion opportunities for Nurses.

This week saw announcement of the selection to temporary colonel of Lt. Col. Pauline Kirby, ANC, Chief Nurse at Walter Reed AMC, Washington, D. C., and Lt. Col. Agnes A. Maley, ANC, Chief Nurse at Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco. More promotions to other ranks will follow.

The Nurse Corps never before in history—in fact, no Women's Service—has had more than one officer of colonel rank on active duty at the same time. The present ANC Chief is Col. Inez Haynes.

In the past, the Nurse Corps Chief has had to revert to lieutenant colonel upon completion of her tour. This apparently no longer will be necessary.

be the commander or a senior staff officer, will be charged personally with examining all reports and, in the case of those found to be unusual, adverse, controversial, will take necessary action to protect the interests of the individual and the government. Such action may include: an inquiry as to any unusual circumstances surrounding the rendition of the report; referral of the report to the rated, rating and/or indorsing officer for comment; initiation of action toward reassignment of the rated officer; forwarding the report to the Department of the Army with appropriate comment.

Substituted for Item 11 in the old efficiency report form, "Officer Characteristics," is a section in the new form titled, "Traits, Qualities, and Characteristics." This is designed to produce information as to the individual's most pronounced attributes. These attributes, which apply in some degree to all officers, include "well grounded and informed," "loyal to superiors," and "makes practical decisions." Rating and indorsing officers will be required to indicate the three most pronounced attributes of the rated officer from among those listed on the new form.

Three other sections have been rewritten. These sections will indicate an officer's proficiency in his performance of duty, his promotion potential, and his overall value to the service. By the use of "key" words throughout these sections, it is believed that the report will give a more accurate reflection of the intent of the rating officer.

Rating and indorsing officers are required to take the same painstaking care in the preparation of the efficiency reports of subordinates that they would expect of their rating officer in the preparation of their own report.

Army authorities emphasized that the preparation of the efficiency report is a serious responsibility and that each officer must understand that even though a new reporting form has been provided, the success or failure of the efficiency reporting system lies in each officer's ability to report the truth objectively, fairly, and without prejudice.

Text Of New Efficiency Report Form

Section IV - Estimated Performance of Other Duties

Important: the preparation of an efficiency report is a serious responsibility. Each individual will take the same painstaking care in the preparation of the efficiency report for his subordinates that he would expect his rating officer to take in the preparation of his own efficiency report. All entries will be true and impartial and made in accordance with AR 623-105.

...and now Gentlemen, the advantages of USAA INSURANCE

On post or base — in the field — at sea or in the air — even off duty, you will hear praise of United Services Automobile Association. Armed forces' officers in all branches, both active and retired, have long learned the value and economy of a USAA automobile insurance policy.

USAA was organized as a non-profit association in 1922 to provide the armed forces' officer with low cost automobile insurance. The current average saving to stateside USAA policyholders amounts to 44% of the standard manual premium on automobiles. Last year, for example, 262,161 members of USAA received over seven million dollars in dividends on their policies.

Under the direction of active and retired service officers, USAA best meets the auto insurance needs of the armed forces' officer — and for the least cost — whether it be in the United States, its possessions and territories; Canada, Cuba, the Canal Zone; Japan and certain Pacific bases; the Philippines or Western Continental Europe.

No matter whether you are stateside, or overseas, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA insurance becomes effective as of postmarked time of application, unless a later date is specified.

Save money... insure peace of mind. Insure with confidence today—with USAA.

Cordiner Committee Gets "Four Score And Seven" Suggestions From Navy EM

Navy enlisted men have turned over 87 recommendations—one of them a pay increase for all grades—to the Cordiner Committee.

The suggestions were formulated by two separate Petty Officer meetings, one at NTC Bainbridge, Md., and one at NTC San Diego, Calif. The gatherings were attended by 220 senior career petty officers who were selected to represent all ratings.

In addition to passing the suggestions to the DoD Committee, the Navy is making its own study of the recommendations to determine if there are areas in which it can act without a nod from higher authority.

The 87 suggested improvements are listed under 20 headings.

Chief among the recommendations are:

Basic Pay

Grant an increase in pay for all grades, with a larger differential between grades to provide an incentive for advancement; double longevity rates, providing an increase every year and eliminating the lapses from 18 to 22 years and 22 to 26 years; and give a bonus of one year's pay to a man who transfers to the Fleet Reserve or if placed on the Retired List.

Income Tax

Eliminate or reduce it.

Sea Pay

Raise it.

Hazardous Duty Pay

Formulate a comprehensive definition to include all types of hazardous duty; increase payments commensurate with the risk involved; and, provide insurance to men who can not get civilian insurance at reasonable rates because of their assignments.

Basic Allowance for Quarters

Increase BAQ by at least 25 per cent and review payments each year to reflect the cost-of-living; allow Petty Officers not on board ship to draw Commuted Rations allowance at their own discretion; and give BAQ to all Chief, 1st Class and 2d Class Petty Officers whether married or not;

Per Diem Travel

Give a flat $12.00 a day to men on temporary additional duty; and, permit a local charge to a TAD member, commensurate with the facilities provided, but pay the flat rate;

Dislocation and Trailer Allowance

Remove the limitation of one dislocation allowance per fiscal year; pay all allowances in advance; standardize methods of payment of travel and per diem in all commands; increase trailer allowance to a flat 30 cents per mile; and, change the law to read that the Government shall pay the full cost of towing if the trailer is towed commercially;

Leave

Remove the 60-day limitation on accrued leave; grant 30 day's reenlistment leave without charge to the individual's leave record; and, pay for unused leave in excess of 60 days at the end of each fiscal year when it is shown that the individual could not take his full leave because of the needs of the Service;

Housing

Lower income requirements to permit more men to purchase homes in the medium price field; lower interest on mortgage loans to three per cent; abolish the title "Public Quarters" and put all housing on a low cost basis; put overseas housing on a billet basis, thus having housing awaiting when a man reports for duty; reduce the rentals of sub-standard housing; and arrange housing in advance by issuing advanced orders;

Retirement and Retainer Pay

Give a 10 per cent pay increase to good conduct medal holders; permit 16-year retirements with a reduction in pay; and, require 30-year retirements;

Traditional Benefits

Extend the privilege of mixed drinks and package stores to EM Clubs in the States; and reestablish commissaries where they have been dis-established;

Other Recommendations

Incorporate Naval Orientation as a requirement for advancement in rate; increase clothing allowance; strengthen esprit de corps through stricter discipline; establish a military academy for all Petty Officers; continue the support of the off-duty education program; stress on-the-job training; slant educational and G.I. benefits toward career personnel, rather than toward Reserve and discharged men; assign all Naval Training Center recruits to sea for 18 months after they complete basic training; permit men to reimburse the Navy through a "buy-out" option if they want to terminate contracts after successfully completing specialized courses so they can take industry jobs; set up a beneficial suggestion awards program like that used in Civil Service; permit Petty Officers preference in berthing places; reduce fraternization between all ranks and ratings; and, establish the Fleets and foreign stations on a basis that will permit families to accompany Navy men to any area.

GREAT LAKES, ILL.—Mrs. Louise Gustafson, the Command's secretary, feeds Capt. Portus D. Boyce, SC, USN, acting Commanding Officer of the Electronics Supply Office here, the first piece of ESO's 10th Anniversary cake at an outdoor reception.

USMC Slices Leave Of Enlisted Trainees

The Marine Corps has decided to eliminate the leave period which has been granted following completion of Recruit training.

Under the new policy, which goes into effect 1 Nov., all male trainees will be assigned directly to Individual Combat Training from Recruit training courses. Upon completion of the entire 16 weeks, they will be given from 10 to 20 days' leave.

M.A. For Capt. Bartlett

Capt. George C. Bartlett, USMC, Project Officer for the Procedures Analysis Office, HQMC, has received a Master's Degree in Personnel Management from The George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

CREW OF THE USS DARTER stand at attention as the flag is hoisted during her commissioning ceremony at Groton, Conn. The Darter, built by the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corp., is the quietest submarine ever built. Her diesel engines are encased in a soundproof compartment and remotely operated by an "airplane" steering system in a soundproof cab. The 1,800-ton ship can make as many knots underwater as her WWII namesake could make on the surface. Her first commanding officer is LCdr. Ralph R. Blaine, USN.

USMC Women Officers Must Buy Blue Uniform

HQMC has issued an order requiring all Women Marine officers on active duty to be in possession of the Blue uniform by 30 June 1957.

On that date, Reserve officers on active duty for a continuous period of two or more years, who have a minimum of 12 months' active service remaining must have the Blues in their wardrobes. The regulation, however, does not apply to Women officers ordered to active duty for periods of six months or less.

Heads NTC Bainbridge

Marine Corps Breaks Six-Stripe Log-Jam; Picks 267 For Master Sergeant Chevrons

Swift promotions will be given to 89 of 267 Marine Corps five-stripe Non-Com's who have been picked to don master sergeant chevrons.

This is the first year since 1952 that the Marine Corps has named more than 100 Staff NCO's for advancement.

For the past three years, HQMC has limited the number of advancements to six-stripe rank to 100 annually. This policy was inaugurated to prevent an excess of master sergeants from increasing.

At one point, the number of top-graders on active duty exceeded by more than 1,200 the number authorized in Tables of Organization. The surplus of six-stripers was a result of promotions made during the Korean War when the Corps was 260,000 strong, coupled with the fact that career master sergeants reenlist at a rate better than 95 per cent.

Rather than resort to a "bust," or forced reversion program, which would have created a serious morale problem, HQMC instituted a number of policies designed to protect men of proven ability who had demonstrated their value to the Corps.

1,194 GET 5 STRIPES

In addition to naming 267 for top enlisted ranks, Colonel Roise's board also chose 1,194 staff sergeants for five-stripe rank. Their names are contained in attachments to Marine Corps Bulletin No. 1430, dated 23 Oct. 1956.

Like their seniors, they will be promoted in three increments.

In addition to limiting advancements to 100 a year, Headquarters increased the time-in-grade requirements for promotion. Another step was to allow six-stripers to fill five-stripe billets without loss of pay until the situation could be ironed out. In addition, HQMC issued Marine Corps Memorandum No. 91-54. The Memo authorized master sergeants to request discharge regardless of length of service.

These programs paid dividends. As of 31 July 1956, the date of the last complete, official count of top-graders, there were 7,447 Regulars and Reserves on active duty. The Corps' authorized strength is 7,315. Between July and September, the slight excess of 132 has been further decreased.

In selecting the 267 Non-Com's for six stripes, the board, headed by Col. Harold Roise, USMC, Head, Promotion Branch, Personnel Department, took into account the anticipated attrition rate for the remainder of the Fiscal Year, ending on 30 June 1957.

The promotions will be made in three increments with dates of rank assigned as 1 Oct., 1 Nov., and 1 Dec. 1956.

Candid cameraman shoots at 600 mph.

Designed to reconnoitre at near-sonic speeds, from the stratosphere or at treetop level, the Douglas RB-66 brings new flexibility to the task of gathering military information.

Compact and hard to spot, combining long range with blinding speed, the Tactical Air Force's RB-66 is suited to swift passes at enemy heartland where—in photo-reconnaissance—its cameras pry into details of defense, transport, and manufacture. The Douglas RB-66 is equipped to fly night or day missions in any weather.

The U. S. Air Force Douglas RB-66: Swept-wing RB-66 with its payload of ultramodern photo equipment will search out needed information at a moment's notice. But success depends on pilot, photo-navigator and the necessary ground crews. Our Air Force always needs good men, and offers opportunity in return. Visit your recruiting office now.

Quality in Manpower. That the problem of attracting and retaining the highest quality of personnel is the most important factor in our national defense structure today is being made increasingly evident in each of the Armed Services.

In the Air Force, the most highly mechanized of our services, research and development and a great industrial system have provided enormously powerful weapons. Yet the Commander in Chief of the Strategic Air Command is being forced to devote more than half of his time to seeking a solution to the question of how to keep those super-weapons constantly manned by highly trained personnel. Qualitative and quantitative personnel increases in SAC have not kept pace with its equipment expansion. As our article from SAC's headquarters at Offutt AFB, Neb., (see page 11) reports, combat effectiveness has not paralleled the equipment increases, but, rather follows the personnel strength and the sad fact is that personnel conditions in SAC are extremely critical and are forecast to remain critical.

The problem of getting and keeping good men in the combat units produces a second problem which further aggravates the situation — the problem of training replacements. As was pointed out at the SAC briefing one-fourth of the Air Force's strength is not available to the fighting forces. This is because 12 per cent of the total strength of officers and airmen are on duty as students or in pipeline status, while another 12 per cent is engaged in training students.

The Army's deep concern in the personnel problem likewise was strongly demonstrated by the amount of attention paid to it by the speakers at this week's meeting in Washington, D. C. of the Association of the U. S. Army (see reports on pages 3 and 29 of this issue). "Even with the most sound and advanced doctrine and the most efficient hardware, we can never achieve our necessary combat capability without the men qualified to execute the doctrine and operate the hardware"—so declared Maj. Gen. Donald P. Booth, the Army's Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel.

General Booth pointed out that there is little problem in explaining why a man in a guided missile unit needs more technical training than his forefather needed in a smooth-bore artillery unit. But, he said, it is more difficult to describe the requirement for "an immeasurably higher degree of skilled leadership than we have ever before imagined." Speed, mobility, and the fire-power of modern weapons, and those to come, mean that junior commanders must be capable of almost unlimited initiative, while majors and lieutenant colonels will be required to make decisions comparable to those made by general officers under WWII conditions. Constant contact with, and dependence on, the guidance of higher headquarters may not be possible. Furthermore, under WWII conditions a small margin of error was not necessarily bad — the commander could break off and try again later. But with increased speed and greater destructiveness in weapons it could be catastrophic. The effect of fear of nuclear weapons, likewise will demand the highest quality of leadership to instill in their commands the physical and mental stamina to fight. Another factor is that it is no longer enough for an officer to be qualified only as an infantryman, an artilleryman, or in armor; because of the smaller, more compact units he must know something about virtually everything.

Under such conditions, the Army Association was told, it is more essential than ever that commissioned and noncommissioned officers be career men, that there be an end to the "endless parade of people through our units and the troublesome personnel turbulence which seriously affects the Army's operational effectiveness."

There are solutions to these personnel problems. The Strategic Air Command, as reported in our dispatch from Offutt AFB, has one tailored to its own specific needs. The Army, too, has one as outlined by Brig. Gen. Albert Watson II. Senior career petty officers of the Navy have made some 87 recommendations as told in our story on page 6. Noncommissioned officers of the Marine Corps came up with a host of suggestions detailed in our issue of 6 October. These

48 F-1 Is Proud

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The Officers and men of the 48th are extremely proud of their record of two consecutive accident free years while flying on a 24 hour all weather basis and it was gratifying to see this record given such prominent publicity in your JOURNAL (13 October).

I noticed with approval the additional comment in your "memo" column regarding the recognition given the Non-Commissioned Officers of the 48th at the award ceremonies. I have always felt that any safety record is due to an equal degree, to the maintenance of the aircraft and that the non-commissioned officers being primarily responsible for this department should receive proper recognition.

Dental Care

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It is my understanding that Title I, PL 569 of the past Congress, eliminates in the ZI dental care for dependents of military personnel. Title I of the Act states its purpose is "to create and maintain high morale" in the Armed Services. This seems a peculiar way to create high morale especially in view of the continual verbal deluge by administration officials on action to improve "career attractiveness."

I also note you report the Cordiner Committee is studying proposals to give higher pay to airmen at such remote spots as Thule. I hope the committee is also giving due consideration to the 1000 plus soldiers that are also at that remote spot.

Retaining Qualified Officers

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

During the last 10 years industry has made great strides in its efforts to attract and retain qualified engineers, scientists and technicians. Industry has used retirement plans, stock purchase plans, incentive programs, free hospitalization, opportunities for advanced education, and expense-free moves as incentives to "come work for our company." Personnel managers of industry were quick to grasp that the incentives offered by the Army prior to WWII were effective in attracting career personnel. Industry now realizes that "people are our most important commodity" and is making real steps to attract and retain qualified men. Now look at the situation in the Army.

The equipment in the Army is becoming more complex with each new advance in research; our superiority in equipment is supposed to be one of our advantages over our potential enemy. Unless technically qualified personnel are in the Army to operate and maintain our equipment, our advantage is lost and the money and time spent in research and development has been wasted.

In the not too distant future it appears that we will not have qualified personnel available in the Army to operate and maintain our equipment. Junior officers who possess technical know-how are resigning constantly; each issue of the ARMY, NAVY, AIR FORCE JOURNAL bears this out. Nearly one-sixth of the USMA class of 1953 resigned within 90 days of the time they were allowed to resign. Senior officers who possess technical knowledge and managing ability are asking for early retirement soon after they accumulate 20 years of service.

An interview of the young officer by a general officer after the youngster has made up his mind to resign is not the corrective measure needed. A recent appeal to industry by our top leaders to stop playing up the disadvantages of military service will not solve the problem, either. This problem of attracting and retaining technically qualified men is a serious one; it will not be solved by a "head in the sand" approach of let's not talk about it and maybe it will go away. Industry leaders are realistic when they compare the disadvantages of the Army today with the higher pay, better surroundings and more stability in "their company."

The problem of retaining our qualified men (the ones that industry is willing to hire and re-train) might be solved by: (1) an increase in pay comparable to that offered by industry (2) decent living quarters and (3) at least three years in one place before being moved to a new station. Practicing a little preventive maintenance on our personnel to the same degree as we do on our materiel may influence some technically qualified men to remain in the army. If we can retain what we have now, we may be able to attract some more.

vary somewhat in details, but fundamentally all are based on better pay, better housing, restoration of such deteriorating privileges as post exchanges and commissaries, action to increase prestige and rights, help on income tax, and, if it be possible, put a stop to the constant sniping at established and traditional rights, privileges, and perquisites.

It must be recognized that considerable progress has been made, particularly in such areas as survivor benefits, reenlistment allowances, family medical care, and other fields. At the same time, the mounting concern in all of the Armed Forces and the personnel statistics themselves show conclusively that the problem has not been met. It behooves the Department of Defense, and its Cordiner Committee, and the Congress to lengthen their strides and take steps in the next session big enough to approach a workable solution to the vital problem of career attractiveness.

SAC Fights For Pay, Homes, Lower PX Prices, Recognition And Schooling: Spend $148 Million, Its Leaders Urge, And Save $304 Million—Plus 500 Planes

STRATEGIC AIR COMMAND HQS.
OFFUTT AFB, NEBRASKA

THE Strategic Air Command has stuck its neck out. It has dared to reveal how its atomic striking power is being pinched by critical manpower shortages that cost the equivalent of 6½ operational wings. What's more, SAC has put squarely on the record recommendations for what needs to be done to alleviate the situation. It has said how much the program will cost and even has compiled how much can be saved.

Now, it will be up to Washington to accept or reject the program. SAC leaders, from Commander-in-Chief General Curtis E. LeMay down to all squadron commanders, are hopeful the Defense Department Budget Bureau and Congress will decide that the loss of skilled personnel can be tolerated no longer.

The men of SAC contend that, first of all, combat efficiency is being jeopardized below acceptable standards. They spell this out in terms of aircraft that are stuck on the ground for want of skilled manpower. Beyond this essential factor, General LeMay and his associates declare that the manpower loss is too expensive on the taxpayers.

THEY MAKE THE POINT that simultaneously combat effectiveness can be bolstered and major fiscal economies achieved by adoption of a five point program.

That program, as outlined in a special briefing here, is highlighted by a boldly conceived pay raise that would provide incentives for men to train as specialists and remain on active duty once they have acquired skills that are of value to the Air Force.

In addition to pay, General LeMay is advocating—and at this time he is doing it more boldly than any other military leader—a vigorous housing program and the restoration of commissary and exchange rights.

SAC personnel studies, documented by hundreds of interviews with Air Force Officers, NonCommissioned Officers, Airmen and their wives, show also that action is necessary to provide more educational opportunities for men who stay in military service.

Here at Offutt AFB Headquarters, SAC is giving consideration to a plan that would permit a man to take a limited amount of college training while on active duty.

The SAC career program also calls for improvement of the individual's rights and status. Surveys reveal, for example, that many men who serve with bomber units are concerned because of the fact they feel that their importance is not adequately recognized by the public. Many NonCommissioned Officers and Officers cite in their personnel interviews the fact that military service in the past has been recognized by special income tax exemptions, which take into consideration extra costs of global service, but that these have been revoked.

FISCAL EXPERTS at SAC Headquarters have estimated the cost of General LeMay's five-point program at $148,940,417. The fact that this has been computed to the last dollar is an indication of the thoroughness of the work that has been done here on the personnel problem.

It is the Number 1 concern of General LeMay and his commanders. His associates say that the C-in-C now spends about 60 per cent of his time on various phases of the personnel situation.

The SAC estimates forecast that selective pay increases would cost $47,360,700, with $741,000 needed to provide improved educational rights. The PX and Commissary program would cost nothing; all that is required is for present limitations to be relaxed or lifted entirely.

Major item in the SAC tally is $100,838,717 for housing. This expenditure would assure decent American-type homes for SAC's 89,400 families; at present, there is housing for only 16,842.

WHAT WOULD THE NATION receive for expenditure of $148,940,417 to cover the cost of the SAC program? The answer, according to top operations and personnel planners here, is as follows:

1. The reenlistment rate would go up from 35 per cent to 65 per cent.

2. Retention of officers would more than double—from 25 per cent to 55 per cent.

3. More than 500 aircraft—the equivalent of 6½ wings—would be kept "ready for action" at all times.

4. The increased stability would permit SAC to cut its troop spaces by 10 per cent, compared to its present requirements. Concurrently, there would be a 46 per cent reduction in replacement training costs, reduced requirement for Air Training Command bases and substantial cutback in travel outlays.

5. By providing adequate Government quarters, great savings would be realized in quarters allowance payments.

Asked to spell out the results in terms of men, SAC officials said that the program would save 670 officers and about 10,000 airmen, whose training has cost $344.8 million. Immediate replacement training costs are put at $49 million. Quarters allowance payments total $59.7 million. Including VA educational payments that would be saved, SAC forecasts overall benefits worth $453.5 million for the $148.9 million cost.

But that's not all, SAC officials emphasize. What counts even more, in their estimation, is the overall improved combat effectiveness and the fact that SAC's capability will be boosted by the equivalent of 6½ wings, whose cost to develop is put at $2,440,000.

AS THE SITUATION NOW STANDS, wing commanders of SAC are unanimous in concluding that "personnel conditions are extremely critical and are forecast to remain critical." What they want is more capability for less dollars.

The SAC commanders contend that qualitatively and quantitatively personnel increases have not kept pace with wing expansion. Thus, for example, SAC has gone from 37 wings in January 1953 to 51 in July 1956, which is a 38 per cent increase, with an increased manpower allocation of 27 per cent.

This drop would be acceptable according to many SAC combat leaders, provided the turnover problem could be licked. But at the same time that overall personnel strength is dropping in relation to wing strength, there is the disturbing fact that the SAC experience level is skidding.

At the end of this year, it is estimated that only 8.4 per cent of the airmen in the command will have over four years duty in SAC; 77,000 will be serving their first year in SAC and another 45,300 will have less than two years experience.

"That does not make for a professional force," says the SAC briefer, acting as General LeMay's spokesman. "And what we must have is a professional force. The Nation cannot afford anything less."

SAC SCHOLARS

SAC's educational standard for fiscal year 1956 increased 40 per cent compared to fiscal year 1955.

During the fiscal year, 128 college degrees were awarded, 2,966 SACmen received high school diplomas and 471 men raised their educational level to the eighth grade.

In self-teaching and correspondence courses, there were 12,198 new enrollments and 3,078 completions. There were 12,391 new enrollments in group study classes on base with 9,043 completions.

In college, or high school classes conducted by civilian schools, there were 13,964 enrollments with 11,316 completions.

During this period, 8,593 new enrollments in ECI courses represented a 100 per cent increase of ECI enrollments over the previous fiscal year.

Dive Bombing—Capt. Asa Whitehead (ATC), 248.43, and Lt. Col. Charles E. Yeager (USAFE), 239.25.

SPECIAL WEAPONS

Final scores for the ground event in special weapons delivery are: USAFE, 50,588; FEAF, 50,265; SAC, 46,266; TAC, 45,167; and ATC, 42,079.

Top SWD honors went to Capt. Dee McCarter (USAFE), who scored 12,296. Capt. Robert L. Cooper (SAC) took second place with 11,847.

In the separate events category Capt. William R. Ragon (TAC) was top man in low-angle bombing. He blasted his way to victory with a 4290 score. Capt. Dee McCarter won the high-angle event with a 4127. Col. William Chairsell, (FEAF) with a 4182 score, won the dive bombing contest.

ROCKETRY PHASE

Final standings in the rocketry phase are:

1. EADF, Selfridge	13,800
2. WADF, Oxnard	11,400
3. NEAC, Newfoundland	9,600
4. FEAF, Japan	9,400
5. USAFE, England	9,000
6. ATC, Tyndall	8,600
7. MATS, Iceland	8,000
8. AAC, Elmendorf	7,600
9. CAD, Grandview	7,600

A number of awards already have been presented to winning teams and individuals.

Col. Norman Orwat, USAF, received the Richard I. Bong Trophy as captain of EADF's top air-to-air rocket team.

The Clinton D. Vincent Trophy was awarded for the first time to the ground controllers of the winning team. This prize went to 1st Lt. Graemem Howard and 1st Lt. James M. Dorsey who directed the EADF air crews to their targets.

USAF team trophies went to the first three teams. Behind Col. Orwat's crew was WADF who took second prize. The award was accepted by Col. Edwin Carey, USAF. In third place was NEAC. The cup was accepted by Col. C. W. McColpin, USAF.

The trophy for individual high score was shared by 1st Lt. Robert Long (EADF), Col. David Graham (pilot) and 1st Lt. B. R. Thompson (radar observer) of AAC. Each tallied 4,800 points.

Sgt. Donald Vorst of EADF was winner of the outstanding crew member award.

SAUERKRAUT 3-1 OVER SPINACH

It's sauerkraut 3-1 over spinach in the Armed Forces. The Army Quartermaster reported this week that the Services took 9,359,489 pounds of canned sauerkraut from last year's pack, compared with 3,534,896 pounds of spinach.

Better Food Ahead

ment of AF dining halls, use of the Master Menu, and a separate career field for food service personnel.

Brig. Gen. Charles J. Bondley, USAF, Directorate of Supply and Services, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel, opposed the suggestion that AF dining hall operations should be turned over to civilians on a contract basis. An initial step in this direction has been taken by the Air Force at Vance AFB, Okla., on a trial basis. There have been reports that this procedure would be expanded to numerous other bases in the United States.

General Bondley's position was opposed by Lt. Col. Roger L. Stevenson, USAF, representative of the Directorate of Manpower and Organization, Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations. He said such a move would be highly desirable from the standpoint of efficient manpower utilization.

Marshall C. Warfel, Assistant to the Vice President of the Hilton Hotel chain, supported General Bondley. Mr. Warfel also urged the Air Force to "break away" from the Master Menu.

Another speaker, Andrew J. Crotty, Jr., President of Crotty Brothers, Inc.,

(a member of the Hoover Commission Task Force which studied food problems in the Services) said a Master Menu is essential to proper food management by the military.

Mr. Warfel recommended that food service officers be given an opportunity to progress to all of the officer grades to the rank of major general. They currently are restricted to the grade of colonel.

Other conferees joined Mr. Warfel in championing a separate career field for food service personnel.

Lt. Col. James M. Fielder, USAF, a representative of the Career Development Division at USAF Headquarters, said studies to date do not indicate the feasibility of a separate career field. He added, however, that the problem will continue to receive attention.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS in in-flight feeding techniques were outlined to the conference by Lt. Col. Albert A. Taylor, USAF, research scientist at the Aero-Medical Laboratory at Wright Air Development Center here. (This will be the subject of an article in a future issue of THE JOURNAL).

The three-day conference was kicked off by Brig. Gen. Emmett B. Cassady, USAF, Directorate of Transportation Services, AMC. He told the group that food services offer unlimited opportunities to boost AF morale.

Lt. Col. John Orosz, USAF, Chief of the Food Service Branch at AMC, was Chairman of the Conference. He was assisted by Capt. W. A. Pienkowski, USAF, also of the Food Service Branch.

memo

DESPITE THE FACT that Army ground forces in Europe have been the focal point of public discussion regarding cutbacks in U. S. manpower in Europe, the Air Force is very much in the picture of prospective reductions. Many in the Defense Department—including a large number of Air Force leaders—think in view of the reduced AF personnel strength—about 908,000 now, instead of the planned 970,000—that serious thought should be given to reducing overseas allocations. THIS WOULDN'T BE DONE OVER-NIGHT: for one reason, there are specific NATO commitments, which would have to be modified. But there's more and more talk about doing just that.

THE COAST GUARD CAN COUNT on strong support on Capitol Hill next year for its annual budget pleas for improved air-sea search and rescue equipment. The dramatic rescue in the Pacific by the Cutter Pontchartrain last week called attention to the Coast Guard's great skill in saving lives at sea. FOR MANY YEARS, Coast Guard leaders have been pleading in vain for adequate funds to replace outworn equipment, particularly aircraft. One of the ocean station vessels (Duane) is 20 years old; four have been in service 19 years.

INAUGURAL PARADE PLANNING already is receiving preliminary consideration in the Services. The Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard all want to put their best foot forward. THE AIR FORCE HOPES there will be no repetition of the on-again, off-again situation with regard to the controversial 1952 flyover and is pointing for display of the eight-jet B-52 and the new Century Series supersonic fighters. The Navy also would like to show its new aircraft to a nation-wide TV audience. ARMY ENTHUSIASTS, who were delighted with the attention accorded the mammoth 280mm. atomic cannon in the last Inaugural, would like to show off something with comparable crowd appeal. One suggestion: "The Flying Platform." A squad of soldiers flying down Pennsylvania Avenue past the reviewing stand would likely steal the show. SAFETY FACTORS, however, undoubtedly will keep the Army grounded for the parade, with the possible exception of helicopters.

MORE SHRIMP FOR SAC--that's the request of men who fly and maintain the world's greatest bomber force. They have been getting shrimp on the menu only once a year, but would like this item at least once a month. (See last week's Journal for first story on a new all-Service ration.)

LIMITED DUTY OFFICER ranks for all Services—only the Navy and Marine Corps use LDO's at present—is gaining renewed consideration at the Pentagon and in major commands of the Army and Air Force. The studies are tied to work of the Cordiner Committee on pay.

"SKYCAV" WILL NOT BE LOST from the Army lexicon. It's recalled that in last year's Sagebrush maneuver in Louisiana, the Air Force and Army got in a spirited squabble over the Army's employment of SKYCAV units. This was straightened out in conferences between Secretaries Brucker and Quarles. THE ARMY SUBSEQUENTLY abandoned temporarily the use of the term "SKYCAV" and reorganized these aerial reconnaissance units. But now the word is being used again in top echelon reports on Army aviation plans. It's a descriptive and imaginative term; don't be surprised if national circulation magazines jump on the story of flying soldiers with their jetless sabres.

SAC CHIEFS ARE WORRIED that Pentagon and Budget Bureau finance moguls will duplicate their fiscal '57 achievement in whacking about $100 million from the bomber force's funds request. One aftermath of the Symington Committee inquiry may be a Capitol Hill demand to know, immediately after the 85th Congress convenes, how much SAC and other Commands asked in their final budget presentations and then how much they were cut by (1) the Defense Department and (2) the Budget Bureau. A MAJOR WORRY AT SAC are current-indications, from no less a source than SecDef Wilson, that with the prospect of more guided missile wings, it would be possible for the Defense Department to scale down the target of 137 full-manned, modern aircraft wings.

NONCOMMISSIONED OFFICERS (they want to be known that way and not as NCO's or "Non Coms") are going to be the center of legislative attention in 1957. The forthcoming pay raise bill will be aimed essentially at the problem of assuring adequate numbers of skilled NonCommissioned Officers. VIGOROUS ACTION is being pursued by the Services to boost the status of enlisted leaders. The Air Force is working hard to develop a uniform NonCommissioned Officer Academy curriculum for all commands. IN GERMANY, Lt. Gen. Bruce C. C. Clarke, USA, Commanding General, has just congratulated the Seventh Army's NonCommissioned Officer Academy upon completion of its seventh year—28,000 graduates. He revealed plans to replace the bulk of officer instructors with outstanding NonCommissioned officers. That's the kind of action, coupled with pay adjustments, which will help provide the hard core element the Services must have.

THE FEAT RECEIVED LITTLE NOTICE, but it's significant that the 16 North American F-100's from the 450th Fighter Day Wing of Foster AFB, Tex., which recently were deployed across the Atlantic in TAC's "Operation Mobile Baker" test for participation in NATO's "Whip Saw" maneuver, returned from North Africa to the North American continent with only one in-flight refueling. TAC IS CONVINCED it can reduce AF manpower overseas by TDY shifts of units from the U.S., much as is done by SAC. The Army can be expected to complain, because the TAC plan means ground commanders in Europe will be working with new air units all the time.

A SPECIAL TAX EXEMPTION, such as the $1500 WWII allowance and the special credit for service in Korea, may be sought in the 85th Congress. Advocates say such a step would give tangible recognition to all military families and thereby would strengthen the program of adding prestige to military service. A $1500 exemption is seen by many as possibly not politically realistic, but proposals are being made to the Cordiner Committee for special tax recognition to men and women in uniform.

IT'S TOO EARLY TO SAY whether the tests will prove successful, but SAC is experimenting with Commissary phone orders and home deliveries, at a nominal extra charge. The comprehensive internal career attractiveness program in SAC has seen a new order by General LeMay on the problem of Check cashing in exchanges and Commissaries. He has told commanders that Officers and NCO's should have the privilege of cashing checks at Service facilities.

FT. BLISS CANCELLATION

The old Ft. Bliss postal cancellation, retired in 1949 after almost a half century of service, will be back in use 3 Nov. to commemorate the Fourth Annual Philatelic Exhibition at Hinman Hall, Ft. Bliss.

The cancellation will be made available to collectors on specially-prepared envelopes bearing a stamped cachet of the Replica of the old Magoffinsville Ft. Bliss.

First put to use 26 April 1907, the old style hand-stamp die canceled its last piece of mail 6 March 1949, when the job of canceling first class mail was moved from the Bliss office to the El Paso, Tex., office as an economy measure.

Five Men Will "Fly" Five Days In Test

A five-man crew will spend five days and nights in a confined, grounded aircraft cabin to test their endurance and efficiency under long-range flight conditions.

The test, which will be conducted next February by the Wright Air Development Center of the Air Research and Development Command, will be held to determine how a flight crew would react, both physically and mentally, to prolonged flight.

The "flight" will be made under actual mission conditions. All the men will have certain duties to perform and there will be unscheduled "emergencies" signalized by the placing of a smoke bomb in the air conditioning system, a change in the instrument readings or by a verbal announcement by outside observers.

RETIRED SERVICE NOTES

L/G Doolittle Heads NACA; Awards Told

Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle has been named Chairman of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the nation's principal aeronautical research agency, to replace Dr. J. C. Hunsaker, who has been chairman of NACA for the past 15 years.

The election of General Doolittle came at the Committee's meeting in Washington, D. C. Leonard Carmichael, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, was re-elected Vice Chairman. Dr. Hunsaker will continue to serve as a member of the Committee.

General Doolittle has enjoyed careers in the military, business and in public service. He was retired from the Air Corps in 1946 with his present rank. He was President of the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences in 1940, and was the first President of the Air Force Association in 1946. He has been a member of the NACA since 1948.

Dr. Hunsaker's aviation career goes back to 1913 when, as a naval officer detailed to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he organized the first formal courses in aeronautical engineering, and built one of the country's first wind tunnels. During WW I, he was responsible for the design of all naval aircraft.

Dr. Hunsaker was a member of the NACA in 1922-23, and was re-appointed by the President in 1938. In 1941, he succeeded Dr. Vannevar Bush as Chairman.

Meanwhile, NACA has awarded Distinguished Service Medals to two employees of the NACA High-Speed Flight Station, Edwards, Calif., "for outstanding bravery beyond the call of duty" following a high-altitude explosion of the rocket-propelled X-1A airplane, which endangered three airplanes and the lives of 10 men.

The DSM is NACA's highest award. Recipients were John W. Moise and Charles W. Littleton, crew members of the B-29 "mother" airplane which was carrying the research plane when the incident took place.

Moise and Littleton were credited with saving the life of the X-1A pilot, Joseph A. Walker. The incident occurred at 31,000 feet 8 Aug. 1955 in the course of a launching operation seconds before the research plane was to be dropped from the belly of the B-29. A few seconds after the explosion occurred in the X-1A, Walker became unconscious from lack of oxygen.

Moise and Littleton, realizing further explosions or fire might follow, took precarious positions in the B-29 bomb bay, opened the X-1A canopy and removed the unconscious Walker.

Walker will receive the Exceptional Service Award, which also will go to Stanley P. Butchart, pilot of the B-29, and Richard E. Payne, X-1A crew chief. Letters of Commendation will go to John B. McKay, co-pilot of the "mother" plane, and Rex L. Cook, Merle C. Woods and Richard A. DeMore, B-29 crew members.

Gen. Marshall Honored With Wilson Award

General of the Army George C. Marshall this week received the Woodrow Wilson Award for Distinguished Service.

First conferred in 1924, the award is made for "meritorious service to democracy, public welfare, liberal thought or peace through justice."

Among previous recipients was General Marshall's WWII superior, Henry L. Stimson.

Gen. Pick Recovering

There were press reports from Ft. Benning, Ga., this week that Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, USA-Ret., former Chief of Engineers, who had undergone major surgery, was recovering. The 66 year old officer is head of the Alabama Planning and Industrial Board.

Col. Balchen Retires

Col. Bernt Balchen, USAF, Special Assistant for Arctic Affairs Headquarters, Northeast Air Command, and internationally known polar regions expert, will retire from the Air Force on 31 Oct. at Pepperell AFB, Newfoundland.

A native of Norway, Colonel Balchen began his colorful career when he joined the Norwegian Air Force in 1920 as a second lieutenant to attend flying school. In 1925 he flew as a pilot on the Amundsen-Ellsworth Relief Expedition to Spitzbergen, and in 1926 was a member of the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile Arctic Expedition.

Later in 1926, Colonel Balchen left the Norwegian Air Force to visit the United States, and became one of the pilots on Admiral Byrd's flights across the Atlantic. He was also chief pilot of the Byrd expedition to the Antarctic. On this latter expedition he piloted the first flight across the South Pole. He was naturalized, and became a U. S. citizen in 1931.

Colonel Balchen joined the Army Air Force in 1941, and was commissioned as a captain with assignment to Greenland, where he built and commanded the Army Air Base at Blaue West Eight. Following this, he worked with the Norwegian underground in occupied Norway. After World War II, he left the service and returned to Norway where he reorganized the Norwegian Airlines and became its president and managing director.

Recalled to active duty with the Air Force in 1948, he commanded an air rescue squadron at Fort Richardson, Alaska. His next assignment was as Special Assistant on Arctic Problems to the Director of Installations, Headquarters, USAF.

Retired Officers Elect

The Retired Officers Association of the University of Tampa, Fla., has elected the following officers for the academic year:

President, Col. William L. Burbank, Inf. USA-Ret.

1st Vice Pres., Lt. Col. Foster O. Blake, Ord. USA-Ret.

2nd Vice Pres., Lt. James G. Jones, USN-Ret.

3rd Vice Pres., Lt. Col. Russel R. Randell, SC. USA-Ret.

4th Vice Pres., RAdm. E. Irish, USN-Ret.

Treasurer, Lt. Col. H. D. Caldwell, FC. USA-Ret.

Secretary, Capt. R. E. Bassler, CEC. USN-Ret.

Sgt. at Arms, Lt. Col. William I. Harris, USAF-Ret.

Chaplain, Col. Dache M. Reeves, USAF-Ret.

Judge Advocate, Lt. Col. William M. Jefferson, Inf. AUS-Ret.

Retired Officers Tell Progress Of Company

The Federal Services Finance Corporation, established by retired Army officers in 1924, and which specializes in automobile sales financing, automobile loans and personal loans, reports an increased gross volume and net this year despite the 25 per cent decrease in auto sales in 1956 as compared to the preceding year.

As of 30 June, the net income of the corporation, the report states, was up 29 per cent. Although originally the company confined its activities to automobile financing, it formed several subsidiaries during the past four years for specialization in unsecured personal loans. This phase of the business accounted for more than 23 per cent of the net income for 1955, and continued improvement is expected this year.

The president of the corporation, Brig. Gen. Willard A. Holbrook, USA-Ret., and Maj. Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck, USA-Ret., chairman of the board, attribute the success of the venture to their policy of "sound and conservative management." Furthermore, the company discovered that its plan to provide financial aid to Army, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard personnel was based upon personnel who are and have been good credit risks.

RETIRED AF GENERALS AID EDUCATION

Lt. Gen. Idwal H. Edwards, USAF-Ret., and Lt. Gen. Robert W. Harper, USAF-Ret., were leading participants in a world-wide educational conference last week at Maxwell AFB, Ala., under chairmanship of General Edwin W. Rawlings, USAF, head of the Air Materiel Command.

It was the first meeting of its kind since the conflict in Korea.

A highlight of the conference was the dedication at Maxwell of the Air University Library as the Fairchild Library, in honor of the late General Muir S. Fairchild, USAF.

OTHER AIR FORCE LEADERS participating in the Maxwell conference included General Otto P. Weyland, USAF, Tactical Air Command; Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, USAF, Air Training Command; Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Power, USAF, Air Research and Development Command; Lt. Gen. David M. Schlatter, USAF, Commandant, Armed Forces Staff College, and Lt. Gen. Dean C. Strother, USAF, Commander, Air University.

Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Jr., USAF, represented Headquarters, USAF; Maj. Gen. Francis H. Griswold, USAF, represented Strategic Air Command; Maj. Gen. Marshall S. Roth, USAF, represented Air Defense Command, and Brig. Gen. Cecil E. Combs, USAF, represented the Air Force Personnel Training Research Center. Col. Paul O. Buckholts, USAF, of Air University, was recorder.

Lt. Gen. Harper

Presidential Physician

Retires From Reserve

Dr. I. S. Ravdin, who holds the John Rhea Barton Professorship of Surgery and is Chief Surgeon to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, will be retired from service in the Medical Corps Reserve in ceremonies at Philadelphia on Tuesday, 30 Oct.

Dr. Ravdin is said to be the first medical officer to reach the rank of Major General in the Army Reserve.

Dr. Ravdin was a civilian consultant to the Army surgeons who operated on President Eisenhower for ileitis last June. He received the Legion of Merit with oak leaf cluster for his service as commanding general of the Twentieth General Hospital in Assam, India, during WW II. This military medical unit was staffed by University of Pennsylvania personnel.

Ranking officers to participate in the retirement ceremonies include Brig. Gen. Philip F. Lindeman, USA, Chief, Army Reserve and ROTC Affairs, Department of the Army; Lt. Gen. Charles E. Hart, USA, CGH, Second Army, and Maj. Gen. Silas E. Hays, USA, The Surgeon General.

Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, USA-Ret., Physician to the President, will bring a message from President Eisenhower.

Dr. John McK. Mitchell, Dean of the University's School of Medicine, who as a Colonel, MC, USAR, served as executive officer of the Twentieth General Hospital unit during WW II, will represent this unit in the ceremony.

Brig. Gen. Harold G. Scheie, MC, USA-R, CG of the 31st Hospital Center Reserve unit, Schuylkill Barracks, Philadelphia, will preside. Dr. Scheie is Professor of Ophthalmology in the School of Medicine and was a member of the Twentieth General Hospital unit commanded by Gen. Ravdin in WW II.

Dr. Ravdin, who is also Director of the Harrison Department of Surgical Research at the University, is Chairman of the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons. He is Senior Consultant to the Surgeon General of the Army, a member of the Advisory Council on Health and Medicine, Office of the Secretary of Defense, and a member of the National Advisory Cancer Council to the Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service.

Gen. Dahlquist Reports

On Investment Manual

The Armed Forces Department of Harris, Upham & Co., 1505 "H" St., N.W., Washington, D. C. nationwide investment brokerage firm with 35 offices coast to coast and members of the New York Stock Exchange, released the "Military Investment Manual" at the second annual meeting of the Association of the U. S. Army in the Sheraton-Park Hotel, Washington, on 25 Oct.

The 12-page booklet is designed, according to General John E. Dahlquist, USA-Ret., Director of Harris, Upham's Armed Forces Department, "to acquaint Servicemen the world over with stock market operations, different investment mediums, and the real values of long-term investing for members of the Armed Forces."

General Dahlquist said that "the services of this new department have generated inquiries from officers and enlisted personnel in every branch of the service from all parts of the world."

General Dahlquist, who retired from the army last February after 39 years of service and joined Harris, Upham in March, pointed out that "Harris, Upham has expanded its services to all U. S. Armed Forces, here and abroad, with emphasis placed on investment securities as the major part in a balanced savings program for both individuals and families, in order to provide growth factors along with fixed income savings and life insurance."

Gen. Tansey Returns

To Retired List From CIA

Maj. Gen. Patrick H. Tansey, USA, Office of the Central Intelligence Agency, Washington, D. C., has reverted to retired status. He was recalled in 1954.

Brig. Gen. Rothwell H. Brown, USA, Office of the Army Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C., will retire 31 Oct. after more than 30 years' service.

Brig. Gen. Richard J. Werner, USA, Chief, Georgia Military District, Atlanta, Ga., has been assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Army Forces, Far East. He will report to his new post 1 Jan.

Brig. Gen. James P. Hannigan, USA, Artillery Commander, 1st Armored Division, Ft. Polk, La., has been assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Army Forces, Far East. He will report to his new post 27 Jan.

BRENTNALLS WILL STAY IN MISSILES

Maj. Gen. Samuel R. Brentnall, USAF, one of the Armed Forces outstanding authorities on guided missiles, has retired, but his family will continue to play a role in guided missile development.

The general's son, Burden, a West Point graduate like his father, is an Air Force First Lieutenant assigned to a Guided Missile School at the University of Michigan.

General Brentnall, a one-time end on West Point football teams, before his 1928 graduation, was given responsibility in 1950 for production and engineering of the B-47. After service in Korea as Vice Commander of FEAF, he was assigned to Washington in 1953 as Assistant for Programming, Office of Guided Missiles in the Defense Department and shortly thereafter was made Assistant Deputy CofS Operations for Guided Missiles at USAF Headquarters. In April 1954, he was designated Assistant CofS for Guided Missiles.

First Termers Goal Of Army G-1 People

The Army, its enlistment rate since January lower than expectations, also is disappointed with the retention rate of soldiers completing their first term of service.

Brig. Gen. Geo. R. Mather, USA, said the failure of the first-termers to reenlist creates two major problems — lack of adequate junior leaders and a requirement for heavy expenditures at technical schools to train replacements.

Deputy Director of Personnel Plans under the Deputy CofS for Personnel, General Mather told the Association that 66 per cent of enlisted personnel have less than three years' total service. He said "this underlines the fact that our experience level does not have the necessary depth at squad and platoon level."

General Mather reported that the Army seeks to reduce that figure to 57 per cent and increase the proportion of soldiers who have three to nine years' service from 19 to 28 per cent.

"This," he said, "will serve to give more stability to the Army by decreasing the endless parade of people through our units and the troublesome personnel turbulence which seriously affects the Army's operational effectiveness."

Brig. Gen. Mather

with the proposition that a major in the Medical Corps should receive more pay than a major in the Infantry.

Since the forthcoming Cordiner Committee program is designed to meet the demands of a professional career force, no suggestion will be made to increase the pay of lower-ranking enlisted men or of second lieutenants. There is general agreement throughout the Defense Department that men in the bottom enlisted and officer ranks are adequately compensated.

Pentagon officials are extremely reluctant at this time to put any price tag estimates on the pay raise that will be asked early next year.

However, it is learned from sources close to the Cordiner Committee that if the full-scaled recommendations of some of the top Service spokesmen are accepted, the new pay bill would cost over $500 million.

Realists concede that the final proposal, as approved by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, the Budget Bureau and the President, probably will be between $250 million and $500 million.

It is learned that Chairman Ralph J. Cordiner, president of the General Electric Company, and his associates have been impressed with Service presentations showing that by providing additional incentives for trained personnel, net savings in dollars—not to mention combat efficiency—can be realized.

The Cordiner Committee reportedly is giving particular attention to proposals which would virtually scrap present pay scales for senior officers, that is colonels and generals in the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps, and captains and flag officers in the Navy, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service.

Chips Go Down On Military Pay

Secretary Wilson has stated repeatedly that greater pay incentives are needed for "top management" personnel, as was the case for senior civilians in the Defense Department. Mr. Wilson and Assistant Defense Secretary Carter L. Burgess have asserted that pay for senior officers has fallen far out of line during the past several decades.

It remains to be seen how the Cordiner Committee will answer this problem. There are authoritative indications that one plan that has been presented would raise the pay of colonels and captains in the Navy by about $3000 per year. This would mean larger increases, of course, for generals and admirals.

The object here would be to close the gap between civilian pay at top echelons and military pay and to provide greater incentives for career service by making a lifetime's duty in uniform more rewarding at its conclusion.

Details of the Cordiner Committee final studies will be withheld until they can be firmed up and presented to Secretary Wilson and to the President, but it can now be stated that specific dollar and cents recommendations are before the group for action.

Air Force leaders have gone before the Cordiner Committee to declare they think it "judicious" that cooks and truck drivers should receive the same pay incentives as radar maintenance men.

The Air Force has told the Cordiner Committee that airmen performing duties in 239 different specialties receive identical pay on the basis of rank and longevity.

Sources close to the Cordiner Committee report that the group has been impressed with the comparative fact that the Civil Service System has 40 pay grades for about 175 specialties.

The Air Force spelled out its position on the forthcoming pay raise during testimony before the Symington Airpower Committee. That position has not changed. The Air Force is fighting hard for the differential pay system.

The other Services, also faced with critical requirements for specialists, are advocating pay boosts for Non Commissioned Officers and Officers as vigorously as the Air Force.

However, the Army, Navy and Marine Corps are said to be more wary of the specialized pay plan than the Air Force because of the concern that combat leadership qualifications might not receive adequate recognition.

This thorny problem is said to be receiving joint-Service study, so that a "solid front" can be presented by the Uniformed Forces when the chips go down for the actual writing of the Cordiner Committee Report.

Banner Year Seen For Army Reserve

The Army Reserve began the current fiscal year with 206,000 officers and men in pay status, a gain of 43,000 during the preceding 12 months.

This was reported by Brig. Gen. Philip F. Lindeman, Chief, Army Reserve and ROTC Affairs.

He predicted that fiscal '57 will see a 50 per cent gain in over-all strength.

General Lindeman attributed the gain to the Reserve Forces Act of 1955.

In addition to the men between 17 and 18½ who complete six months active duty and join the Reserve, the Army can look forward to receiving thousands of Reserves beginning next summer from among draftees who complete two years service.

General Lindeman said that the Army will be required to increase its use of leased and rental space to meet Reserve requirements pending construction of permanent facilities.

Concluding his remarks to the Association, General Lindeman said:

"When you add up what has taken place in the past fiscal year and when the present rate of procurement is considered, the future of the Army Reserve looks brighter than ever."

Brig. Gen. Lindeman

School Plans Related

Maj. Gen. James L. Richardson, USA, Chief of the Career Management Division, told the Army Association that "battlefield leadership" will continue to be the essential objective of assignment planning, although he stated that there will be increased emphasis on specialization.

He noted that all Regular second lieutenants will attend Branch basic course, followed by Airborne, Ranger or Army Aviation training. In the past, it was either Airborne or Ranger; the Army Aviation alternative is new.

General Richardson said 50 per cent of Regular officers would get to the Command and General Staff College, 10 per cent to the Armed Forces Staff College and about 20 per cent to the war colleges. He said Army officers can count on spending 40 per cent of their careers overseas

FIGHTING MAN HAS NO SUBSTITUTE

L. Gen. C. D. Eddleman, USA, presented a lengthy presentation on "Future Army" to the Association of the U. S. Army meeting on 25 October. He told of plans for increased use of nuclear weapons and reported that "we plan to integrate atomic delivery capabilities down to and within our divisions."

General Eddleman revealed that the Army expects to develop atomic warheads for "selected conventional artillery weapons which are retained in our weapons family." There has been wide speculation that this has been achieved already.

THE DEPUTY COFS FOR MILITARY OPERATIONS emphasized the need for mobility of forces. He made known that the Army has "expressed to the Air Force our requirements for improved strategic airlift support which exploits the capabilities of the dynamic aircraft industry."

Also, said General Eddleman, "we have expressed our interest in water-based aircraft which do not require fixed terminals which are vulnerable to enemy action. In the field of surface transportation," he related, "we visualize high speed, roll-on roll-off shipping."

General Eddleman gave a comprehensive summary of Army plans for the future, emphasizing striking power, mobility, logistics changes and improved communications.

But at the end, General Eddleman asserted "there is no substitute for the fighting man. He is our ultimate and indispensable military resource. With his heritage of freedom and enterprise, he has drawn deeply upon the institutions and traditions which have made this nation great. He has learned to face and master every obstacle, just as his forefathers did before him."

"He can fight in the mountains, in the jungle, in the desert, on the beach. He carries whatever it takes to sustain him. He can walk, run, or crawl. He can swim, sail, or ski. He can't be defeated if he's well led and well equipped. With his ingenuity, perseverance and courage, there is none to equal the American soldier, be he on land, sea or in the air."

"MAN IS THE BASIC and essential element of military power. The modern equipment of tomorrow is meaningless without his ability to master it. Above all else, we must preserve this resource if our nation is to remain secure."

SecNav Pratt Backs Marine Corps Policy Barring Wives From Living In Japan

Assistant Navy Secretary Albert Pratt has thrown his weight behind the Marine Corps order prohibiting families from joining their husbands in the Far East.

A number of Marine wives who followed their husbands to Japan in "tourist" status openly defied the Marine Corps restriction. They arrived in Japan on 60-day visas, which they had extended, believing that as American citizens they had the right to travel anywhere they pleased.

Reports that wives and children were arriving in increasing numbers prompted Lt. Gen. Christian F. Schilt, USMC, to write an advisory letter to his subordinate commands in the Far East.

Brig. Gen. David F. O'Neill, USMC, Commanding General, 1st MAW, told his officers and men that dependents remaining in the Far East for more than 60 days are considered to have lost their tourist status and remain in the restricted area in violation of HQMC policy. In effect, he gave the Marine wives and children until 4 Nov. to leave the area.

The wife-revolutionaries seemed to have scored a point when General Randolph McC. Pate, CMC, upon arrival in Tokyo for an inspection tour of Far East bases, was reported in press dispatches to have said, "I don't agree with General O'Neill on this order. I think he made a mistake."

The General in an official statement released here, said, "I must make it plain that I realize that neither I nor any other military man has the authority to order dependents to return to the United States."

While admitting that he did not have the legal right to order wives and children home, the General said, "I have the right, however, just as has been the practice in the past in our Corps, to expect that officers and men who are heads of households will loyally do their utmost to carry out my announced policy in this regard and I have the right to require them to indicate to me their reasons for failing to observe this policy."

Navy Secretary Pratt, Chief of Personnel and Reserve Forces, this week, stood behind the Commandant. He said:

"Every effort is being made to assist dependents in obtaining transportation home in order to minimize the inconvenience which must necessarily result from this situation which is dictated by the needs of our national security. Accommodations on Government operated transportation to the U.S. is currently being made available to these Marine dependents on ships which would otherwise be returning partly empty this month. A number of dependents have already taken advantage of this opportunity which may not again be so readily available. Cases involving exceptional hardship will be given special consideration. Final responsibility for any inconvenience must rest, however, with individuals who chose to circumvent the Marine Corps policy which was of long standing and which received wide publicity."

"Although the action on the part of the relatively few dependents concerned is recognized as reflecting the normal and understandable desire of families to stay together, any relaxation of the order would be unfair to the vast majority (98%) of dependents of Marines who have loyally accepted the Marine Corps policy as being in the best interests of our national security."

Col. Van Sickle Tells Of Modern Airmanship

The D. Van Norstrand Company, Inc., of N. J. will publish soon a book on the basic aspects of modern flying written by 19 aerial authorities and compiled and edited by Col. Neil D. Van Sickle, USAF.

The book, called Modern Airmanship, is 864 pages long and includes 552 illustrations. The core of the book is what the pilot needs to know about weather, aerodynamics, the structure and propulsion of his craft, the instruments and tactics of flight, instrument flying and air navigation. It is written especially for military flyers.

Here Is How Army Of The Future Will Be Supplied With Needs Overseas Pipeline Will Be Greatly Reduced—Items Speeded

There has been great attention paid during recent months to new weapons development and to new tactical concepts required by nuclear warfare. Relatively little has been reported on the supply problems that are being created by the fast-moving changes.

For this reason, THE JOURNAL publishes herewith the complete text of remarks prepared by Maj. Gen. Frederic I. Brown, USA, for presentation to the Association of the U. S. Army on 26 October. General Brown is Director of Supply Operations, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics.

I wish I could state that we have a solution to the problem of supplying an overseas theater in war. However, I can state that we are well on our way toward a solution. Basically our traditional concept of overseas supply has been a pipeline of great diameter, moving supplies selected months in advance under a great initial pressure at the input end and at a low but constant velocity. Because of the great diameter of the pipe and momentum of the mass, the valves were slow acting and therefore control was exercised by varying the input or the initial pressure. The impetus from the rear forced the offshore end to disgorge regardless of consumption or facilities as the objective was to create a high level of stockage within the theater.

Maj. Gen. Brown

OUR NEW CONCEPT is a pipeline of small diameter capable of great and variable velocity operating under a vacuum controlled by consumption. As an item is taken out of the pipe for consumption, one is put in at the input. If items are taken out rapidly, replacements are put in rapidly, and the overall velocity is rapid. If there is little or no consumption of an item, there is no movement of that item in the whole pipeline. If a large number of consumers are using an item, we put it in the pipeline in slugs and send the slugs to a depot on the far shore to issue to the consumer. If there are only a few consumers, we tag the item to go direct to the consumer. Naturally we have vacuum chambers in the system, which cushion the individual vacuum pulses of consumption and which, by their capacity, maintain a vacuum if the pipe is broken for a period. Further, instead of a "big inch" going East for example, we are using a direct invasion pipeline to each area of operations. Such a concept requires a sensitive control and communication system—a logistic communication system.

We have such a concept under test now—our Project MASS (design of a Modern Army Supply System). We are supplying Seventh Army in Europe with its entire requirement of repair parts directly out of ZI depots. In the test, our only depot in Europe is the Army depot and at present it is mobile, so you can see it is small. We only stock in Europe to meet 85% of demand—the high consumption parts. This stockage is only 15% of the items and tonnage we used to ship and stock. We have established, through experience in the Korean War and in test stations in the U.S., that 15% of the cataloged parts will satisfy 85% of all requirements. We replenish these carefully-selected depot stocks by container express shipments on regular ocean shipping. The non-stocked or unusual demand is furnished directly to division level by air shipments. Each echelon only carries a stock to meet 85% of its demand.

Many of you are aware of our new

Army Field Stock Control System. By means of this, we stock the direct support level of supply by usage. Both items and quantities are automatically adjusted to consumption. A by-product of this is a constant automatic reporting of consumption back to producer level. Also a part of this system is the "one line requisition." Gone are the traditional requisition form, laboriously typed out at company level. Instead, a pre-printed form is furnished for each item of supply. All that the originator does is indicate quantity and authenticate. Only limited editing is necessary, as he receives pre-printed forms for authorized items. This whole system has been absorbed in Project MASS and further mechanized. The machines do all the consolidating of these requisitions and finding the stocks. Since these electronic machines will be integrated with our Army grid communication system, they are no more vulnerable than other Army communications.

ONCE A PUNCHED card is dropped in a hopper at division level, the machine system takes over to include transmitting by radio to the ZI. From the time the card is dropped in the hopper, we are consistently delivering by air in 10 days and replenishing depot stocks by sea in 20 days. Although still in the development stage, the results have been so gratifying that we are extending it to the USAREUR COMZ. To go back to my original example, we will manifold a new invasion pipeline to COMZ with that now running to Seventh Army and are studying laying one in Korea. Our vacuum chambers will be small general depots, either underground or mobile. The number of vacuum chambers can be tailored to meet anticipated pipeline damage. Reserve levels will be low in each, and variety of stock limited. Our Advance Section has, in fact, been moved back to the ZI, and the new lines of communication are designed for ease of establishment.

An inherent part of the parts system is planned and controlled cannibalization of unserviceable rather than depot rebuild. In other words, a field army is being made self-sufficient in maintenance. When we have refined the techniques, the electronic supply and communications system will be put into rugged type Army equipment capable of soldier operation.

So far I have touched only on the distribution and control systems for overseas supply. Paralleling these projects are the transportation projects. For over four years now we have been developing improved techniques for supply through multiple minor ports and over-the-beach operations on the far shore. In Operation NODEX, conducted every other month, normal Army cargo shipments are unloaded under exercise conditions up and down the coast of France. Through extensive palletization and containerization of cargo and the utilization of improved beach lighters, aerial tramways and rough terrain material handling equipment, discharge times have been reduced to as little as 20% of those required using conventional methods and equipment.

We are following very closely the development of roll on-roll off and other ships designed for expedited discharge and loading. Thus we are developing independence of large, vulnerable fixed ports. For day-to-day operations of the Army, we are rapidly expanding the use of container express, or CONEX as it is called. These are large weatherproof, pilferproof metal containers which do not require the expensive and heavy packaging normal to overseas shipments. There are now 38,000 of these containers in the system and on order.

ON THE NEAR shore end of our overseas supply, we have created the Terminal Commands which will be moved out of the port areas. For example, the Atlantic Terminal Command controls all army cargoes and can operate through any major or minor port on the East coast of the United States. The Overseas Supply Agencies are not only being retained but being integrated as well into our electronic control system. They will remain as a D/A agency with the relocated Terminal Commands. Backing up each of our coastal areas (Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific) will be an underground general depot. These will be covered by the next speaker.

There is a development in the continental U.S. that will directly affect overseas supply and that is the dispersal program for Army stocks. Using our existing depots, we are regrouping them into general depots or complexes for distribution missions. Again, each complex will be stocked to meet the 85% of demand, the high consumption element. Since this stockage corresponds to the stockage overseas, the support of an overseas depot can be switched to any general depot complex in the U.S. in event of disruption of transportation to a particular port or destruction of a particular depot.

WE ARE ATTAINING a flexibility in overseas supply that we feel can meet any of the many contingencies we face in logistics. While our operations are dispersed, we are utilizing the latest techniques in electronics, both in black boxes and communications, to give us central control heretofore unattainable.

Again I say, I believe we are well on our way toward a solution to the support of our modern Army overseas even with its ever new and complicated modern equipment.

New TV Movie Will Dramatize CAP Story

The role of the Civil Air Patrol is depicted in a new 15-minute television film, "Sky Sentinels," which soon will be shown on TV screens throughout the country.

Sponsored by the aviation electronics firm, Lear, Inc., as a public service, the film dramatizes the contributions of CAP during a war emergency or disaster. It is narrated by Tyrone Power.

The movie was premiered in Washington, D. C., on 17 Oct. Ranking military officers, government officials, aircraft industry officials and members of the press attended the showing in the South American Room of the Statler Hotel. Maj. Gen. Walter R. Agee, USAF, Commander of CAP, and Mr. Richard M. Mock, President of Lear, were hosts to the first night audience.

Starring Hollywood producer-director Henry King and Mr. William P. Lear (both of whom are colonels in the Civil Air Patrol), the motion picture was produced by Robert J. Enders, Inc., of Washington, and directed by Robert L. Friend.

The film—in color—will be shown by 75 per cent of the nation's TV stations during the next 12 months. It is estimated that the movie also will be exhibited to at least 7500 civic, fraternal and professional organizations during the same period.

Col. Clarence Renshaw Awarded Legion Of Merit

Col. Clarence Renshaw, North Atlantic Division Engineer, CE, USA, has been awarded the Legion of Merit (Second Oak Leaf Cluster) for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service while District Engineer, Okinawa, from 1952 to 1954.

Maj. Gen. Charles G. Holle, USA, Deputy Chief of Engineers for Construction, presented the award to Colonel Renshaw at New York. In extending congratulations on the award, General Holle said that Colonel Renshaw probably had as much actual construction and engineering experience as any other officer in the Corps of Engineers.

CENSORSHIP?

Reports circulated in the press room at the Sheraton-Park Hotel headquarters of the Association of the U. S. Army's second annual meeting in Washington, D. C., that the Defense Department had stepped in at the last moment to censor some of the major speeches.

This could not be immediately confirmed as The Journal went to press, but there was reason to believe that Army leaders, among them General Maxwell D. Taylor, USA, Chief of Staff, had been "advised" to temper their remarks.

Such a development had been forecast in The Journal previously, in view of the fact that the Association's meeting coincides with the concluding days of a national election campaign.

Tiny Radar Set Aids Surveillance

Army forces will be provided with the world's smallest known radar set, with a maximum range of 6000 yards.

The lightweight, portable unit, built by the Sperry Gyroscope Company, Great Neck, N. Y., will give mobile Army units local battle area surveillance of enemy movements despite smoke, darkness or fog.

Lightness and ruggedness is attained by eliminating a cathode ray tube and substituting audible signals. The set produces sounds of distinctive character when contact is made with a vehicle or soldier, permitting the operator to detect enemy movement.

The set is self-contained in a drum-shaped metal case, 14 inches high and 14 inches long. The low power needed by the set is supplied by a lightweight motor generator that is easily transportable on foot by one member of a two-man observation team. The combined weight of the set and generator is about 85 pounds as compared to most Army radars which weigh a ton or more.

Already field-tested, it was originally developed and produced by Sperry working with the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., and the Army Electronics Proving Ground Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

Later production models will be parachuted with other special equipment during JUMP LIGHT exercises of the reactivated 101st Airborne Division. These exercises have already started and are scheduled to continue through March 1957.

Navy Seeks Applicants For USN Commissions

The Navy is seeking applications from Reserve officers on active duty in the ranks of ensign through lieutenant for Regular appointments.

Eligible for consideration are:

Line (11xx) officers with dates of rank of 1 July 1953, and junior; Line (13xx) officers with dates of rank of 1 Aug. 1955, and their juniors, with the exception of 1355 lieutenants; Medical Service Corps officers with dates of rank of 1 May 1952, and junior; Chaplain Corps (41xx) and Nurse Corps (29xx) officers; Supply Corps (31xx) and Civil Engineer Corps (51xx) officers with dates of rank of 2 July 1954, and their juniors; and line (11xx) WAVES and Supply Corps (31xx) WAVES not above the rank of lieutenant (jg).

Qualified Reserve officers who have had at least a year and a half of sea duty and who have dates of rank of 2 July 1954, and junior, are eligible for transfer to the restricted Line as Special Duty Officers in Law (1620). Aviation ground lieutenants (1355) also are eligible to apply for the program.

Lt. Col. Wachtel To Alaska

Lt. Col. Philip D. Wachtel, Jr., USAF, Chief of Information Services of Western Air Defense Force since June 1953, has departed Hamilton AFB, Calif., for assignment with Headquarters Alaskan Command, Elmendorf AFB.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

BILL BURD, who recently became an Eagle Scout at a Court of Honor held in Abilene, Tex., pins Mother's Eagle Pin on his Mother. Bill is a former member of Troop 31, Ft. Monroe, Va., where he earned many of his merit badges under the tutelage of Scoutmaster Capt. Hart Kait, USN. Bill is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. H. Burd. His father is PMS&T of the Army ROTC at Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, Tex.

THE Officers' Wives Club of Bolling AFB will have two guests of honor, Mrs. Donald Quarles and Mrs. Nathan E. Twining, at their monthly luncheon, Thursday, 1 Nov., at the Officers' Club. Heading the receiving line will be Mrs. Fred Leer, OWC president; Mrs. Reuben C. Hood, Jr., wife of the Commander, Headquarters Command, USAF; and Mrs. N. H. Van Sicklen, wife of the Deputy Commander.

Members and guests will be reminded that Christmas is nearing, as two guest speakers will use the theme, "Christmas decorations" for their talks. Miss Norma Anderson of the "Fashion Flower Shoppe" will have several tables decorated with the yuletide flowers and colors. Mr. E. F. Keegan of the "Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co." will demonstrate the art of tying ribbon bows and how to originally package gifts. Also, Mrs. F. J. Grady, program chairman, will show slides of original Christmas ideas as suggested by McCall magazine.

Andrews OWC Has Night Club Program

The Andrews AFB Officers' Club was the scene of a unique Wives Club program this month. With soft lights, tables with red and white checked cloths and colorful Chianti bottles, the Club dining room was transformed into a night club, the usual luncheon into a three-course Italian dinner, and the entertainment appropriate to the occasion. Joan and Tip Hubbell, a brother and sister team of professional and seasoned trouvers, presented a program of accordian music, singing and tap dancing, which delighted the members and guests.

Much credit is due the program committee, which includes Mrs. George Felton and Mrs. Edward Arnold, for its effective efforts to give the Club varied entertainment programs throughout the year.

With Andrews growing rapidly and incoming personnel mounting, it is the basic purpose of the Wives Club to provide interest and companionship to the wives of new officers. One of its finest Club projects is its hospitality work under a membership committee, which secures names of all newly-arrived wives as quickly as possible and personally calls upon them, acquainting them with the Club activities and all Base facilities. Following the orientation, a cordial invitation is extended to attend hospitality coffees. The direction of this work is under Mrs. Clyde Thompson as chairman of the membership committee, and Mesdames Edward J. York, Max Wickham and T. Z. Corless, as chairman and co-chairmen, respectively, of the hospitality committee.

SGO Women's Club

The Women's Club of The Army Surgeon General's Office will have its next luncheon on Thursday, 8 Nov., at 12 noon at the Officers' Club of the Walter Reed Army Medical Center. The Bethesda-Chevy Chase and the Washington Walter Reed groups will have charge of the arrangements with Mrs. John C. Cressler and Mrs. Charles S. Gersoni as co-chairmen.

USMA Class Of '24

The Class of 1924, U. S. Military Academy, held its Annual Meeting and Class Association party at the Officers' Club, Ft. McNair, on the evening of 19 Oct., with over 70 members and their wives present.

The following Class officers were elected for the coming year: Maj. Gen. William T. Sexton, president; Col. Noah M. Brinson, 1st vice president; Brig. Gen. Charles H. Royce, 2d vice president; James A. Watson, Jr., treasurer; Col. Francis J. Graling, secretary-historian.

Ark., includes Red Cross Volunteer programs for bandage rolling, square dancing at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md., and the children's programs at Junior Village in nearby Maryland.

On 14 Oct., TOPers had a tea at the home of Miss Janet Beiderlinden, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William A. Beiderlinden of Arlington, Va. Guests included Miss Sally Pyne, daughter of RAdm. and Mrs. Schuyler Pyne; Miss Joan Smart, daughter of Maj. Gen. Jacob F. Smart, USAF; Miss Edris Davidson, daughter of Col. James R. Davidson, USA; Miss Patricia Dixon, daughter of Col. (USA) and Mrs. Oliver O. Dixon, and Miss Judy Zeller, daughter of Col. (USA) and Mrs. Frank J. Zeller.

Members of the Washington chapter of the Sorority are Mesdames Wade Aitchison, David Greenley, Wayne Tyler, Misses Jane Miller, Katherine Edwards, Jacqueline Haas, Ann Rogers, Mary Gesler, Barbara Spillenger, Carol Raymond, Lucy Ann Grace, Kay Teale, Mary Caffey, Betty Sue Pence, Patricia Vanderhyden, Mary Spainhour, Mary Ann McManus, Carol Robbins, Dru Spengler, Janet Beiderlinden and Margaret Taylor.

The group meets the first and third Tuesdays of each month and does its volunteer work every other Sunday afternoon and on alternate Monday and Tuesday evenings. The next meeting will be held on 23 Oct., at the home of Miss Raymond's parents on Cathedral Ave., Wesley Heights.

Myer Woman's Club

Members of the Ft. Myer, Va. Woman's Club enjoyed the glamour of "Fashions in Fur" at their October meeting recently. One of Washington's better known furriers, who presented the showing, contributed a fur scarf to be raffled off, its proceeds going to the Heart Fund. The choice item was modeled by Madame Resimont, wife of the Assistant Military Attaché from Belgium.

Hostesses for the occasion were the wives of officers of the Military District of Washington, with Mrs. John G. Van Houten as chairman.

NG OWC Meets

Mrs. Lee Walsh, society editor of the Washington Evening Star, was the guest speaker at the first luncheon meeting of the National Guard Bureau Officers' Wives Club, held at the Officers' Club at Bolling AFB, on 24 October.

Another feature of the meeting was the presentation of a movie of the National Guard's new television show, "The Jill Corey Show."

Mrs. Robert Terrill presided at the meeting, and seated with Mrs. Walsh and herself at the head table were Mrs. Edgar C. Erickson, honorary president of the

Ladies Of Military Surgeons' Convention

Arrangements for entertainment of women guests and members attending the 1956 convention of the Association of Military Surgeons at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C., 12-14 Nov., have a nautical flavor to conform to the Navy sponsorship of the meeting this year.

Mrs. George N. Raines, general chairman of the Women's Committee for the convention and wife of Captain Raines, head of the Neuropsychiatry Branch, Professional Division of Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, has announced a series of events for Tuesday, 13 Nov., which will give the visitors a complete day at the National Naval Medical Center, concluding with a tea at the home of RAdm. Bartholomew W. Hogan, the Surgeon General of the Navy, from 3 to 5 o'clock.

The following day the visitors will see a typical western world construction achievement in a tour of the National Naval Medical Center. Following the tour, luncheon and a fashion show will be held at 12:30 p.m. at the Commissioned Officers' Open Mess when a Washington store will present a parade of fashions with a "New Horizons" look, in keeping with the convention theme, "Expanding Horizons of Military Medicine."

On Wednesday morning at 9:30, the visitors will go to the White House for a conducted tour. That afternoon Mrs. Haydar Gork, wife of the Ambassador from the Turkish Republic, will be hostess at a tea from 3 to 4, where she will be assisted by the wives of embassy staff members. A cruise down the Potomac River on a Navy vessel is planned for the Wednesday luncheon period. Chairmen of committees working with Mrs. Raines and the representatives of the Departments of the Army and Air Force appointed to serve with the Navy groups are Mesdames Thomas F. Cooper, general co-chairman; William M. Silliphant, reservations; Lloyd Shone, tickets; Ralph Parker, tours; Robert B. Brown, luncheon; Thomas M. Foley, style show; Norman L. Barr, decorations; Langdon C. Newman, hostesses; Irwin L. Norman, door prizes; and Bruce L. Canaga, table favors. The Dental and Medical Service Corps of the Navy will have Mrs. B. C. Faubion, Mrs. G. R. Shaver and Mrs. Willard Calkins. For the Army Medical Service will be Mrs. J. B. Coates and Mrs. Heaton Schwartz; for the Air Force, Mrs. Victor Byrnes and Mrs. Charles Roadman; for U. S. Public Health Service, Mrs. Pope Lawrence and Mrs. James Shaw; and for the Veterans Administration, Mrs. L. A. Zink and Mrs. J. C. Nunnemaker.

Service Weddings and Engagements

STEVENSON - DUDMAN — Lt. Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. William R. Dudman of Highland Falls, N. Y., and Philadelphia, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ada Ann, to Lt. Michael Andrew Stevenson, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew G. Stevenson of Toledo, Ohio.

Miss Dudman

Miss Dudman, who is a graduate of the Ladycliff Academy, attended Ladycliff College for Women, and is presently employed at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, N. Y. Lieutenant Stevenson attended the University of Toledo, and is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Class of 1955. He is presently stationed at Ft. Bragg, N. C. A December wedding is planned.

DUFFY-CLARK — Mrs. Walter L. Clark, Jr., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Jeanne B., to Lt. (jg) Joseph A. Duffy, Jr., USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duffy, Sr.

Miss Clark, daughter of the late Mr. Clark, is a graduate of the Delaware Hospital School of Nursing, where she is now a member of the staff. Her fiance, an alumnus of Pennsylvania State University and the Navy Pre-Flight School at Pensacola, Fla., is now stationed at the University of Pennsylvania as an Assistant Professor of Naval Science. A November wedding is planned.

THOMPSON-DOUCETT — Lt. Col. and Mrs. Francis W. Doucett of Ft. Lee, Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Ann, to Lt. Albert G. Thompson, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Francis G. Thompson of Arlington, Va., on 1 Sept., at the First Baptist Church, Exeter, N. H.

The bride, who was graduated from high school in Heidelberg, Germany, attended the University of New Hampshire. Lieutenant Thompson, a 1955 graduate of Texas A&M College, is a recent graduate of the Signal School at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Following a New Hampshire wedding trip, the couple will make their home at Arlington, while Lieutenant Thompson is stationed at Arlington Hall.

HUNTER-DOHERTY — Mr. and Mrs. Francis Richard Doherty of White Plains, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Mr. John Raymond Hunter, son of Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. Howard W. Hunter of Alexandria, Va. Miss Doherty, a graduate of the Academy of Our Lady of Good Counsel, is now a student nurse at Lenox Hill Hospital, New York City. Her fiance, who attended Staunton Military Academy, now attends Stevens Institute of Technology.

TABOR-WALKUP — Miss Donna Ann Walkup, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William E. Walkup of Ft. MacArthur, Calif., became the bride of Lt. Allen Wesley Tabor, 2d, on 5 Oct., at the Wayfarers' Chapel at Palos Verdes. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hunt Tabor of Perry, Ga.

Miss Mary Sue Walkup served as her sister's maid of honor and only attendant.

The bride attended Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga. Her bridegroom, who is a graduate of the University of Georgia, is currently stationed at Los Angeles, Calif., with "A" Battery of the 933d Antiaircraft Artillery Missile Bn.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, the couple will make their home at El Monte, Calif.

SMALL - GOLDSTEIN — Mrs. Rose Goldstein has announced the engagement of her daughter, Sheila Evelyn, to Lt. Arthur H. Small, USAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Small of La Mesa, Calif.

Miss Goldstein attended Catholic University and is now studying at George Washington University. Lieutenant Small, who attended San Diego State College, Calif., and is a graduate of the University of Houston, Tex., is now assigned to the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, Washington, D. C.

ALLEN - FOWLKES — Christ Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., on the afternoon of 13 Oct., was the setting for the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Nancy Anne Fowlkes, daughter of Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. Benjamin Cobb Fowlkes, Jr., of Selma, Ala., and Doncaster, England, and Mr. Richard Milton Allen. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Allen of Salisbury, Md. The Reverend Donald J. Davis performed the single ring ceremony.

The matron of honor and only attendant was Mrs. Peyton Ellsworth Cook of Topeka, Kans., and best man for his brother was Mr. William F. Allen of New Orleans, La. Ushering were Messrs. Donald A. Schwartz and H. Lay Phillips, Jr.

Mrs. Allen attended Duke University for two years and the University of Florence, Italy for a year. Her bridegroom received his B. S. degree from Cornell University and his B. A. degree from Duke. Having served four years in Naval Aviation, Mr. Allen is presently associated with the W. F. Allen Co., of Salisbury, where upon their return from a New England motor trip, the couple will make their home on Woodland Road.

WATSON-TAYLOR — Miss Nancy Lee Taylor of Grove City, Ohio, and 1st Lt. William Thomas Watson of the Adjutant's Office, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, were married on 2 Sept., at the Base Chapel, Wright-Patterson AFB, with Chaplain Albert F. Grothe officiating.

Group Will Do Holiday Shopping For Services

The Armed Services Hospitality Committee in Washington, D. C., will again this year conduct an Overseas Shopping Service to help Service personnel stationed outside the U. S.

The Committee, which has its headquarters in Room 27A, Old Post Office Building, 12th and Penna. Ave., NW, Washington 25, DC., advises that to make use of its non-profit shopping service the following instructions must be followed:

"Be sure to give us first of all your name, rank or rating, serial number unit and APO or FPO and port city. Next give us the name and addresses of the persons to whom you want the presents sent. Be sure to give name and street and city.

"Name your first choice of gift in each case, (red roses—dozen—carnation, corsage—or 2 lbs. Whitman's Chocolates). In every order give the first name, relationship to you, age (if child) sex, size of the person to whom you are sending the gift (if clothing is ordered). Be clear about delivery address, and of course, of the name.

"Tell us how you want the enclosure card to read. Enclose a money order covering total amount you want us to spend plus enough for parcel post, or telegram for late delivery of flowers. We will return all balance to you together with exact accounting of every cent we spend.

"Now for the speed-up part: If you want your presents delivered west of the Mississippi address your order to the United Volunteer Services, Inc., Third and El Camino, San Mateo, Calif. Make out your money order in care of the United Volunteer Services, Inc. They handle all orders for delivery in the West.

"If you want your presents delivered east of the Mississippi make your money order to Recreation Services, Inc. (our operating agency here in Washington, D. C.) and mail to the Armed Services Hospitality Committee (Recreation Services, Inc.) Room 27A Old Post Office Bldg., 12th & Pennsylvania Ave., N. W., Washington 25, D. C."

Maj. Gen. A. L. Marshall, USA

Funeral services were held at the Ft. Myer, Va., Chapel on 24 Oct., for Maj. Gen. Arthur Lawrence Marshall, USA, who died at the Great Lakes, Ill., Naval Hospital, on 20 Oct., at the age of 56. Burial was at Arlington National Cemetery.

Considered one of the outstanding Quartermaster Corps officers, General Marshall entered the Army in 1924 from the Reserve. Having served in the Caribbean theater in WWII, in 1946, he became Budget and Fiscal Officer for the Office of the Quartermaster General. In 1951, he was assigned Comptroller and Deputy for Administration, Office of the Quartermaster General, which position he held until 1953, when he was appointed Commanding General of the Jeffersonville, Ind., Quartermaster Depot. At the time of his death, General Marshall had been named Executive Director of the Military Subsistence Supply Agency in Chicago, where he had served as Chief of the Army's huge Quartermaster Market Center. The Agency had been recently established as a Department of Defense organization handling all food procurement and distribution for the Armed Forces.

The Quartermaster General, Maj. Gen. K. L. Hastings, USA, issued a statement which said, in part, "General Marshall's appointment as Executive Director of the newly created Military Subsistence Supply Agency was indicative of the utmost confidence placed in him by the highest military authorities . . . the Quartermaster Corps, the Army and the Armed Forces have lost a beloved friend, a great leader and a magnificent officer."

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ilene Marshall; his mother, Mrs. Lulu Mae Marshall, and one brother, Mr. Ralph S. Marshall, both of Wichita, Kans.

Adm. Orrin Gould Murfin, USN-Ret.

Graveside services were held on 25 Oct., at Ft. Rosecrans National Cemetery, Calif., for Adm. Orrin Gould Murfin, USN-Ret., 80, who died on 22 Oct., at the U. S. Naval Hospital, San Diego, Calif.

A member of the Class of '97 at the U. S. Naval Academy, Admiral Murfin served in the Spanish-American War and WWII. While he was Commandant of the 14th Naval District, Hawaii, in 1937, he co-ordinated the Naval search for Amelia Earhart's missing plane. Retiring from active duty in 1940, Admiral Murfin was recalled to active status in 1944 to serve as President of the Naval Court of Inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster.

He is survived by his widow, who lives at Coronado, Calif.; and one daughter, Mrs. Donald Mitchell of Honolulu, T. H.

RAdm. George C. Seibels, USN-Ret.

RAdm. George C. Seibels, USN-Ret., died at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Portsmouth, Va., on 23 Oct., at the age of 84, following a long illness.

Born at Montgomery, Ala., the son of Maj. and Mrs. Emmet Goldthwaite Seibels, Admiral Seibels entered the Navy in 1896. Serving aboard the USS Petrel, he participated in the Battle of Manila Bay during the Spanish-American War. At Cavite Naval Station, after the defeat of the Spanish forces, he shared the honor with Ens. William S. Montgomery of first raising the American flag in the Philippine Islands.

Since his retirement from active duty Admiral Seibels had made his home at Norfolk, Va.

New Credit Union Groups For Service Families

Military personnel and civilian employees of the Air Force and the Navy each formed two new credit unions recently, the Credit Union National Association (CUNA) reports. Members and employees of the Armed Forces now have 363 of their own credit unions.

The new credit unions are: the Truax Field Credit Union, Madison, Wis., and the Forbes Federal Credit Union, Topeka, Kans., both for Air Force members and employees; and the Naval Station Credit Union, Orange, Texas and the NMD Employees Federal Credit Union, Yorktown, Va. for Naval personnel and employees.

The credit unions are owned and operated entirely by their members under government charter. Members formed the credit unions to make personal loans to one another at low cost, and to encourage thrifit and regular saving.

Pentagon Proposes Early Mustering-Out Pay And Free-Schooling For Reenlistees

Career servicemen will benefit from two new laws the Pentagon has drafted in its continuing program to attract and retain a "hard core" professional military force.

One of the proposals calls for early payment of mustering-out pay to those who reenlist.

The other will permit men and women to reenlist and retain their eligibility to go to school under the Korean GI bill.

Defense Department officials believe many servicemen currently leave the Armed Forces in order to collect their mustering-out pay or to avail themselves of the free education program.

The Pentagon will attempt to persuade Congress that these benefits should be made available to those who remain in uniform as well as to those who leave the Service.

The recommended change in the mustering-out pay law authorizes payment of MOP to members of the Armed Forces at the time of discharge or release from active duty for the purpose of enlistment, reenlistment or appointment in a Reserve component. At present, the law provides for MOP only on final discharge or relief from active duty, or until the member is discharged to enlist, or be appointed in a Regular component of the Armed Forces. The big change will be for those who reenlist.

The recommended legislation for education benefits will permit those serving in a current enlistment who are inclined toward a Service career, to reenlist without losing their entitlement to the educational and vocational assistance benefits of the 1952 "GI Bill." This Act requires that an eligible veteran (one whose basic service period began prior to 31 Jan 1955) commence study within three years of the date of his discharge and complete his course of study not later than eight years from his date of discharge. However, since men who re-enlist for four or more years are discharged for that purpose they currently lose their entitlement to the free education program.

The Navy has been assigned by the Pentagon as "manager" for both bills when they are presented to the Congress next year.

In addition to these two proposals, the Defense Department has drafted a number of other measures to benefit career soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen.

The latter group includes legislation to give compensatory leave and added incentive pay to men assigned to isolated posts (THE JOURNAL, 29 Sept.). Also, as reported in the same issue, the Pentagon will recommend (1) up to 30 days reenlist leave for those who elect to remain in uniform for at least four more years; and (2) a new basic quarters' allowance for E-4s.

Another proposal (THE JOURNAL 20 Oct.) calls for improved meals and more milk on messhall tables throughout the Services.

All of the steps are expected to further bolster Service reenlistments.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

Martin Team Will Plan A-Powered Seaplane

A new operations management team to oversee the development of a nuclear-powered seaplane has been appointed by The Martin Company.

Operations manager of the project is William G. Street, a former Martin chief flight test engineer and project engineer in the company's Advanced Design Department.

Formation of the new operations team follows Martin's "systems management" concept under which all active projects, i.e., bombers, seaplanes, missiles, electronic systems, etc., are managed by a single operations manager.

The new management team was prompted, according to Mr. Street, by the advancement of the Navy's Aircraft Nuclear Propulsion program to the point where Martin management deemed the new team a necessity.

For the past three years, Martin has been engaged in a Navy-sponsored program of engineering studies looking to the development of an airframe for a nuclear-powered seaplane. The formation of the operations team was a step in the transition to actual airframe development.

Nearly $240,000,000 worth of military contracts has been awarded Lockheed Aircraft Corporation in recent weeks. The most recent contract was let by the Navy for an undisclosed number of WV-2 Super Constellation radar planes valued at $50-million. The order will extend deliveries of the plane through 1958. Earlier, the Air Force let two orders for the ultrasonic F-104A and the two-seat F-104B Starfighter. The Starfighter contracts totalled approximately $166-million. A third recent Air Force contract ordered $20-million worth of T-33 jet trainers at a fixed price.

The Air Force has awarded a contract to California Eastern Aviation, Inc., to overhaul and modernize 115 twin-engine C-46 transport aircraft for $1,895,000. The work is scheduled for completion 30 Sept. 1957.

Convair Gives Add-on Contracts to Rheem

Rheem Manufacturing Co. has been awarded a $2,667,000 contract by the Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation, A. Lightfoot Walker, Rheem president, announces.

The new order is an add-on to a contract Rheem is now fulfilling for aircraft control surface parts for Convair F-102-A interceptor planes. Production on the Convair contract is being carried forward by Rheem's Government Products Division, headquartered at Downey, Calif.

George W. Grosscope, former Project Sales Manager with the Glenn L. Martin Co., has been appointed to the newly created position of Defense Products Manager for American Machine & Foundry Co. in Atlanta, Ga.

During WWII, Mr. Grosscope served as chief purchasing agent for Hammond Aircraft, and with the Navy Aviation Supply Office at Guam. He was discharged with the rank of lieutenant (Jg) in 1946. He rejoined the Navy in 1950 during the Korean War and was discharged two years later as a lieutenant (sg).

An order for 100 landing gears for the Navy's new primary jet trainer, the Temco model TT-1, has been placed with the Menasco Manufacturing Co. by the Temco Aircraft Corporation.

Northrop Aircraft, Inc., has presented a full-scale mock-up of a jet airplane to Northrop Aeronautical Institute for study by students of aviation engineering sciences. The plane is in a design class with the current Century series. The model is called the Fang, and will provide Institute students with information on supersonic aerodynamic design. Maintenance of the model will be performed by students at the aeronautical school, and will provide experience for them in the repair and finishing of wood and metal structure.

New Flame Thrower

The Army Chemical Corps has reached a final development stage on a one-shot lightweight flame thrower that weighs only 26½ pounds, combat loaded.

This compares with 72 pounds in the multiple shot model.

Designed by the Aerojet General Corporation of Azusa, Calif., under supervision of the Army Chemical Center, Md., the new flame thrower uses either thickened or unthickened fuel.

Its fuel capacity is two gallons, compared with four-and-a-half gallons for the multiple shot type.

The new weapon is light enough to be "jumped" with a paratrooper as part of his equipment, the Army said.

Ralph Platt Appointed Editor of The Pegasus

Ralph G. Platt, Managing Editor of The Pegasus, monthly magazine published by the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp., has been promoted to Editor, Richard S. Boutelle, Fairchild President, announces.

Mr. Platt, an Air Force officer in WWII, joined the Fairchild organization in August, 1955, after serving 25 years as Aviation Editor of The Cleveland News. He is a former President of the Aviation Writers Association.

Mr. Platt succeeds William G. Key, who has been Editor of the magazine since 1949. Mr. Key is now Assistant to the President of Fairchild.

AF Will Promote 93 MS To Captain

The following are the names of the 93 Air Force Medical Service officers selected for temporary captain rank in order of seniority.

The top man on the list has a date of rank of 26 March 1949, while the junior selectee holds rank from 27 March 1953.

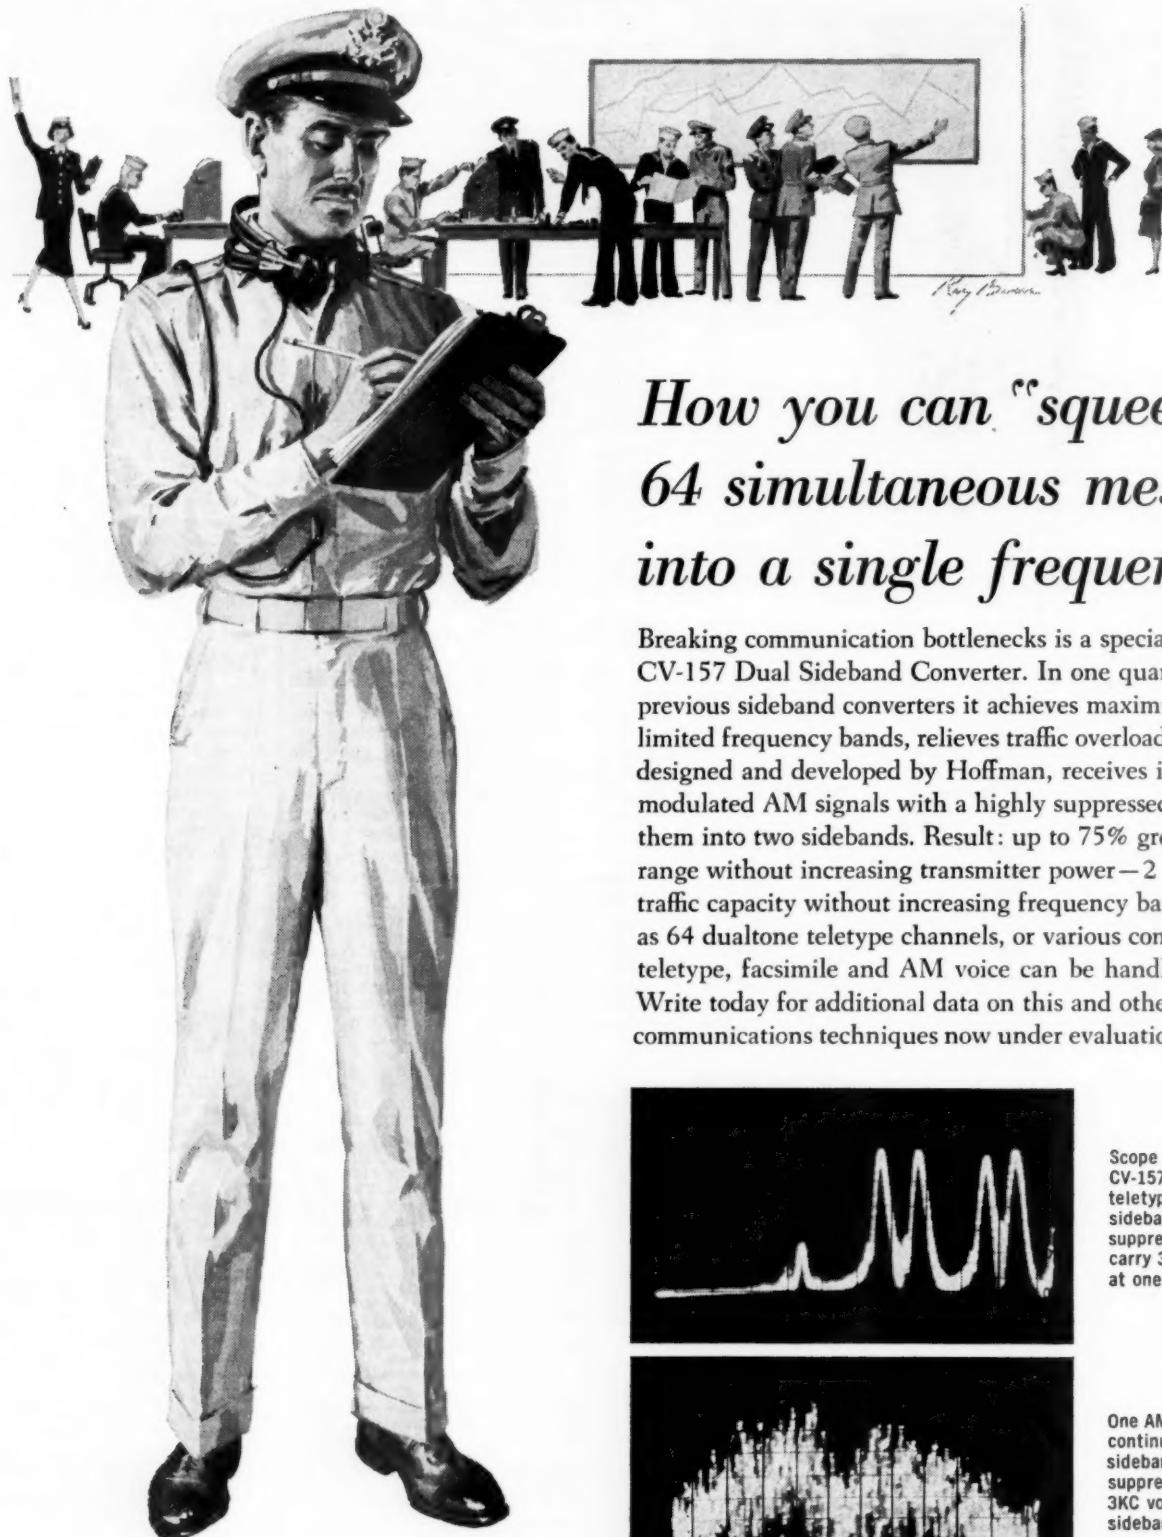

Analysis of the list shows that one officer holds rank in 1951, 22 in 1952 and the rest in 1953.

How you can "squeeze" 64 simultaneous messages into a single frequency

Breaking communication bottlenecks is a specialty of the Hoffman CV-157 Dual Sideband Converter. In one quarter the space of previous sideband converters it achieves maximum use of today's limited frequency bands, relieves traffic overloads. The CV-157, designed and developed by Hoffman, receives independently modulated AM signals with a highly suppressed carrier and splits them into two sidebands. Result: up to 75% greater effective range without increasing transmitter power—2 to 32 times more traffic capacity without increasing frequency bandwidths. As many as 64 dualtone teletype channels, or various combinations of teletype, facsimile and AM voice can be handled by the CV-157. Write today for additional data on this and other advanced communications techniques now under evaluation at Hoffman.

Scope pattern taken from Hoffman CV-157 showing two dualtone teletype channels on upper sideband, carrier partially suppressed. Each sideband can carry 32 teletype channels at one time.

One AM voice channel (made by continuous vowel sound) on each sideband, carrier completely suppressed. CV-157 carries two 3KC voice channels on each sideband.

AM voice on lower sideband, dualtone teletype channel on upper. With suitable multiplexing equipment, the CV-157 handles 64 simultaneous dualtone teletype channels.
